PRESIDENT TAFT TAKES UP M'NAMARA CASE

The prosecution of the dynamiting cases, following the sentencing of the McNamara brothers, took on a national character to-day when it became known that President Taft was back of the Federal Grand Jury investigation of the cases.

It is expected that the McNamara brothers will testify to-morrow before the Federal Grand Jury at Los Angeles. Then they will be taken secretly to San Quentin prison

Detective William J. Burns is working on the case for the government, and is at Philadelphia to-day in connection with the work.

Clarence S. Darrow, who was counsel for the McNamaras, in explaining why they confessed, to-day said: "We were confronted with the situation of dragging our case, perhaps for years, with nothing but the gallows at the end, and no chance to raise any doubt in a thinking mind, and in the meantime collecting money from thousands of people who could not know the facts."

HEAVY GUARD FOR THE KING AND QUEEN

DELHI, India, Dec. 6.—The colonial authorities have provided an unusually heavy guard for King George and Queen Mary during their stay here for the Durbar. Fears for the lives of the royal couple who will be crowned Emperor and Empress of India have arisen from the series of suspicious fires which have destroyed many of the buildings and decorations provided for the pageants.

Although the police have expressed the belief that the fires were not of incendiary origin, a rigid investigation is being made. The announcement was made to allay public excitement. A cordon of Sepoys is guarding the scene of the Durbar's pageants to prevent further fires.

The elaborate ceremonies incident to the investiture of King George and Queen Mary will begin in Delhi to-morrow with the arrival of their Majesties from Bombay. The royal couple will be met at the railroad station by Lord and Lady Hardinge, 150 Indian princes, 321 Lancer regimental retainers, and a royal guard of soldiers. They will be escorted to a pavilion inside the fort, where they will be formally presented to the native princes.

Thousands of Children in Line.

Following this procedure, their Majesties will be taken to their quarters on the plain of Delhi. The route will be lined by thousands of school children, who will strew flowers in the King's path.

The actual ceremonies will begin to-morrow with the State entry and reception of the Indian chiefs and will continue to December 16. In these ten days will be crowded an endless round of receptions, reviews and ceremonies on a scale of unequalled magnificence. These will be followed by a hunting expedition which will be conducted by the native princes, with the King as a guest. It is estimated that ten million dollars have been spent in decorations, the mobilization of troops and the preparation of the royal encampment.

The great celebration will reach its height December 12, when the King and Queen are formally invested with the titles of Emperor and Empress of India.

This ceremony will be witnessed by two hundred and fifty thousand people, while over two hundred millions will hear the coronation proclamation that will proclaim in every province and village in India through the special representatives delegated to make the instrument known to the populace.

The coronation will take place at midday, in two great arenas in the centre of the encampment. The King will adjust the crown himself, giving the impression to his Indian subjects that no living man is worthy of wearing out this old relic.

Exhibit the Crown.

After the ceremony he will be hailed by the guests as Delhi-Ke-Bashah, for the first time in Indian history. The royal couple will then receive the homage of the governors, chiefs and officials and retire to the royal pavilion, where the proclamation of the King-Emperor will be read.

Incident to the coronation of their majesties will be the first public appearance of the Indian crown. It was decided to leave the royal crown of England in the Tower of London, and a new crown was especially constructed for the Indian Durbar. This coronet will not be worn by any save the ornament has not been worn by any save those in the royal family and the workmen engaged in constructing it.

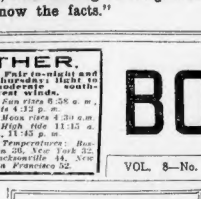
Second only to the interest of Their Majesties and their coronation on December 12 is the interest displayed in the encampment outside the city of Delhi. The tent city lies to the west of the famous old fort and surrounds the Circuit House, built by Lord Curzon for the Delhi Durbar. Two and one-half miles square and contains every convenience of a modern city. There are gas service, drainage system, over twelve miles of railroad, thirty-one postoffices and one telegraph offices. Here the King and Queen will occupy two great tents during the ceremonies.

During the ceremonies over a quarter of a million people will be under canvas at the encampment grounds, which cover an area of over twenty-five square miles. Four divisions of infantry and two divisions of cavalry have been mobilized for the Durbar and 100,000 soldiers are now in Delhi besides the escorts of the native princes.

Over $250,000 will be exploded in fireworks on the eighty decorations. Old Delhi the ancient city will be portrayed in fire at a cost for the single piece of $15,000. Altogether the Delhi fireworks will cost over $1,000,000. In Rangoon, Cawapore, Bombay and Calcutta $150,000 will be devoted to this form of entertainment.

Their Majesties have brought with them over a million dollars' worth of jewels and nearly $500,000 worth of gifts for the Indian princes, nobility, officials, children and the entertainment of the poor of India. Twenty-four solid silver trumpets, costing $100 each, will be used to announce the reading of the coronation proclamation and afterward distributed among the princes, peers and officials

GEORGE U. CROCKER ACCUSED OF BRIBERY IN WILL CONTEST



GEORGE U. CROCKER

BROKER BROWN AGAIN ACCUSED

Broken in spirits, and with his wife and two children ill in the hospital, Chester E. Brown, at one time a prominent broker in Boston, with a residence in the Hotel Coolidge, Brookline, appeared before Judge Perkins in the Brookline court to-day, charged with stealing $10 from A. J. Hayman, a druggist in Washington square, Brookline. His case was continued until December 15.

No sooner had he stepped from the court house than he was arrested again by Sergeant Rutherford of the Brookline police, for Patrolman McCready of the Lexington street station, charged with stealing $20 from Michael Meehan of Boston. From Brookline he was taken to the Pemberton square court and arraigned on the latter charge.

The Brookline police say that there is another warrant for Brown, sworn out by the Manchester, N. H., police, on a charge of passing a worthless check for $40 on a resident of that city.

"GENERAL SLOCUM" SINKS FOR LAST TIME

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6—The last vestige of the unfortunate steamboat General Slocum, on which about 1,000 lives were lost in the waters of New York some years ago, now lies at the bottom of the sea. After the steamboat was burned to the water's edge, the hull was converted into a barge and was given the name of Maryland. A report has been received here that the barge could not stand the gale that blew off the New Jersey coast and sank somewhere in the vicinity of Sandy Hook. The crew of five men were taken off by a tug. The Maryland was valued at $20,000 and there was no insurance.

FIND AGED MAN LOST NEAR NORTH STATION

An aged man of venerable appearance was found wandering about the North Station and Canal street unable to find his way home. A policeman gave him five cents and tried to induce him to go to his home, but he did not know where he lived. He was taken to the Hanover Street station and Lieutenant Michael Crowley put his name was John C. Clarke, seventy-two, and lives in Maplewood. He was sent to the Chardon Street Home and the police of Malden and Melrose were asked to identify him.

ARRAIGN WOMAN AS MAN'S SLAYER

HAVERHILL, Dec. 6.—Mrs. Emma Moosh will be arraigned to-day, charged with the murder of Simon Chillingarian, in the rump room of a local shoe factory.

"He ruined my life, he ruined my life," the woman declared when, after being overpowered she was turned over to the police.

CROCKER WILL BRIBERY CASE IS DELAYED

The trial of George U. Crocker, at one time city treasurer of Boston, a member of the first Finance Commission and a member of one of Boston's most prominent families, which was to begin at 10 o'clock to-day, was delayed by a long conference between Mr. Crocker's attorneys and District Attorney Pelletier.

Crocker and John J. Conroy were indicted for alleged bribery in connection with Crocker's father's will.

Rumors of all sorts floated about the Courthouse while the conference was on. Mr. Crocker was asked by a friend what the conference was about. He said:

"I don't know what it's about," said Mr. Crocker in a cheerful voice. "I know that Mr. Choate expected to go on with the case, but when he reached the courthouse an officer told him that Mr. Pelletier wanted to see him, and he has been with the District Attorney since."

This statement was made after the conference had been on for two hours. Mr. Crocker reached the courthouse at 9.30. He was accompanied by Charles F. Choate, Jr., and Henry F. Hurlburt, his lawyers. Both of the attorneys were at the conference with Mr. Dwight Akerman and his assistant, Thomas D. Lovell.

Up to yesterday Judge Sanderson had been sitting in the first section of the Superior Court, transferred to-day to the second session, where the Crocker trial will be held. He heard a number of jurors who wished to be excused to-day.

paid a juror $300, and that Crocker did "feloniously and maliciously incite, move, procure aid, counsel, hire and command said Hartnett" to do the deed. There are six counts in the indictment against Crocker.

Conroy on Trial.

John J. Conroy is also on trial for the same alleged offence.

The first three counts allege that both defendants were accessories before the fact in the bribing of Jesse Matthew E. Killion with $300 on April 28, 1904.

The eighth, ninth and tenth counts, which are the other counts they are to be tried on, allege the same thing in the bribing of Juror John W. Crouln with $150 on April 29, 1904. The body of all these six counts are worded exactly alike.

In the first count Crocker and Conroy are named jointly; in the second Crocker is named alone and in the third Conroy is named alone. The same was done respectively in the eighth, ninth and tenth counts.

The extreme penalty for a crime of this nature is five years in State prison.

The full list of counsel for the defence is Charles F. Choate, Jr., Henry F. Hurlburt, Daniel J. Kiley and Edward C. Creed.

The First Count.

The jurors for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, on their oath, present that on the twentieth day of April, in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred and four, at a sitting of the Supreme Judicial Court of said Commonwealth, holden at said Boston within and for the said County of Suffolk, a jury empaneled of the men of said county was duly summoned, empaneled and sworn to try a certain cause and issue then depending in said Supreme Judicial Court, in session according to law, to wit: An appeal by one George U. Crocker, one Joseph B. Crocker and one Edgar Crocker from a decree of the Probate Court for said County of Suffolk, allowing a certain instrument as the last will and testament of one Uriel H. Crocker, deceased, in which said cause and appeal certain issues and questions had been framed by said Supreme Judicial Court to be answered by a jury, to wit: Was said Uriel H. Crocker of sound and disposing mind and memory at the time of the execution of said instrument, and was said alleged instrument executed without undue influence and undue inducement of one Annie J. Crocker.

That a trial of said cause and said issues was held at said Court on the 20th of April in said Supreme Judicial Court, holden and in session as aforesaid, before Her Honor, K. Braley, Esq., then and still one of the Justices of said Supreme Judicial Court, and said jury of the vamp room of a local shoe factory duly empaneled, impaneled and sworn as aforesaid; that the further trial of said cause and said issues was duly continued and held from day to day before said Supreme Judicial Court; and said jury until the 29th day of April in said year; that between hundred and four hundred and fifty counts

Mrs. Graham Glass, Whom Husband Sues for Divorce

Mrs. Glass, Jr., was Helen Roche. The couple were married in Nashua and parted after a month.

ROSE PITONOF SUES HER RIVAL

Rose Pitonof asks the courts to make Alsie Akyroyd stop advertising herself as the "champion swimmer of America."

Miss Pitonof says that her famous swim to Boston Light and her swim from New York to Coney Island, together with her other natatorial feats, make her the champion swimmer of America. She declares that the Akyroyd billing tends to deprive her of fame, notoriety and remuneration."

She has filed in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court, through her father, Eli Pitonof of Dorchester, a bill in equity, asking that Miss Akyroyd and her agents, especially Herbert H. Pattee, be restrained from billing Miss Akyroyd as the champion.

A subpoena has been issued. The writ is returnable next month. When the hearing on the case comes the learned justices of the Superior Court may expect to listen to some interesting testimony about girl swimmers. It was suggested, when the suit became known to-day, that maybe the rival swimmers would offer to go down to Boston harbor and demonstrate their swimming powers.

This is the first time, so far as known, that professional girl swimmers have come before the courts. One of the most interesting bits of litigation which the Suffolk Superior Court has had to pass upon in regard to a feminine artist was when Fair Lydia Lipkowski secured an injunction restraining the chef of the Hotel Lenox from making delectable dishes after her.

Girl swimmers are just as picturesque, to many people, as grand opera singers, so the Pitonof bill may attract as much attention as the Lipkowski one did.

Miss Akyroyd, who is a Boston girl, like Miss Pitonof, is the headliner in a "tank" act at a South End theatre this week. She is billed thus:

"Champion Swimmer of America.

In objecting to this form of billing, Miss Pitonof says in her bill:

"Miss Pitonof is recognized as champion by official records kept by competent persons and by editors of papers throughout the United States."

Miss Pitonof asserts much money has been spent in advertising herself as champion and that she has appeared at theatres as such.

YOUNG GLASS ASKS DIVORCE

Graham Glass, Jr., a former Harvard student who eloped on Feb. 28 with Helen Roche, a beautiful Roxbury girl, filed a suit for divorce in the Suffolk Superior Court to-day. He charges that she was too friendly with other men during a trip to Paris last Summer. They were married in Nashua, N. H., and lived together but one month.

Following their marriage, Glass, who is the son of wealthy Portland, Ore., parents, was cut to a $5 a week allowance. The couple moved from the Hotel Westminster, where they had lived for a month, to No. 11 Everett street. They separated soon afterwards.

Mrs. Glass has been seen in many public places recently, their last Monday night she occupied a box with a party of two young women and three men at a theatre. She is an exceptionally attractive young woman, and her presence in the box party was noticed by many in the audience.

In April Mrs. Glass brought suit for divorce. The suit was the result of the failure of Mrs. Glass to reach an agreement or reconciliation with the parents of her husband.

She declared that she was cruelly deserted by Glass, and that he has refused or neglected to provide for her. Her suit is still pending and the counter suits will probably be heard together.

Known as an Athlete.

Glass, who is the son of a Portland, Ore., millionaire, and is one of the best-known Harvard athletes, returned to Nashua after being called home following his marriage. He took bachelor apartments with a friend in Hilgrove Hall, one of the college dormitories, and finished his college course last June.

Up to the time of his sudden marriage he had been one of the "Gold Coast" students at Harvard. It was his chum, Nelson Cammann, who married the divorced wife of Rufus Gaynor, son of Mayor Gaynor of New York, and Glass subsequently immediately followed that marriage. Efforts were made by students at Harvard to reconcile Glass before he eloped to Nashua, N. H. It was said at the time that they acted at the request of Glass's father.

Mrs. Glass was for two months in Dec. 1910 at No. 60 Holworthy street, Roxbury.

BANKERS CAUGHT IN A HURRICANE

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 6.—Six hundred American bankers, all members of the American Bankers' Association, who have been on a Southern cruise on three United Fruit Company steamers, have been caught in a terrific hurricane which is raging over the Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico, and the keenest anxiety is felt here.

All efforts to get in touch with the steamers by wireless failed, and the belief was expressed that the terrific wind had swept away the wireless masts on board the vessels.

The United States government was appealed to and was asked to send a cruiser in search of the missing ships.

For fifteen hours last night and to-day all the wireless stations in the Gulf coast attempted to get in communication with the boats, but without success. The stations have been warned to keep a strict watch for all "S. O. S." calls of distress and report them immediately to the nearest government patrol station, so that revenue cutters can be sent at full speed.

Many from Boston.

Among those in the party from Boston were: W. H. Dwelley of the American Woolen Company; W. Prentiss Parker and E. C. Armstrong of Kidder, Peabody Company; C. C. Hilman, Jr., National Colonial Bank; C. L. Hilman, Beacon Trust Company; C. A. Dwinnell, First National Bank; E. Filmer Fosdick, Old Colony Trust Company; H. Wells, Old Colony Trust; E. W. Rooney, First National; J. H. Symonds, Second National Bank; F. G. Newhall, Brighton Market National Bank; E. H. Howell, Charles Trust Company; A. L. Bacon, of Roxbury of the National Bank of Redemption; Morris Stevens, Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Company; J. L. Foster of the Foundry & Allen National Bank; Louis Commissioner Arthur B. Chaplin.

Others in the party from various parts of New England were: H. B. White of the Ayer First National Bank; F. C. Nichols of the Fitchburg Savings Bank; E. A. Orsbank, Fitchburg Safety Fund Bank; C. L. Smith, National Shoe & Leather Bank of Auburn; Mr. W. H. Morse of the Marlboro First National Bank; W. P. Pyne of the Marlboro People's National Bank; G. F. Heywood of the Concord National Bank; F. A. Chittick of the Middlesex County Bank of Winchendon; Merchants' National Bank of Worcester; F. W. Stevens, Groveland First National Bank; C. W. Hazelton, Crocker National Bank at Turner's Falls; W. A. Newell, Bath National Bank; A. F. Hill and J. C. Burke, Traders' National Bank of Lowell; Edward Pynchon of Chicopee National Bank.

DYNAMITE PROBE LED BY TAFT

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—President Taft, it became known to-day, is back of the federal investigation of the dynamiting case brought so prominently before the public through the trial of the McNamara brothers.

When the President was in this city on his recent "swing around the circle," the case was laid before him. He was informed that the federal laws had been violated through a misuse of the mails and by carrying dynamite on cars, thus jeopardizing the lives of passengers.

The federal grand jury convenes here to-morrow, and it will take up the dynamiting cases where District Attorney Fredericks left off with the confessions and sentencing of the two McNamaras. The district attorney is through with the McNamara, but it is expected that they will be called before the Grand Jury and an effort will be made to induce them to tell the names of the men who backed them in their work of destruction.

Give Evidence to the Government.

District Attorney Fredericks has the bribery matter on his hands still, and he also wants to deal with a man named Schmidt and another named Caplan, who are believed to be in Europe and who were mixed up in the dynamiting of the Times building.

The immense amount of information gathered by the district attorney and the mayor of this city through the Burns detective agency will be turned over to the United States district attorney for use in the suit of the federal government.

Detective William J. Burns is hard at work on the dynamiting cases for the government. A dispatch from Philadelphia says that he has reached that city and began an investigation there of the ramifications of the nation-wide dynamite plot. Burns at one time had charge of the Philadelphia bureau of the Secret Service and he will have no difficulty in getting what he wants in that city.

Will Be Taken to Jail at Night.

The McNamaras, after appearing before the federal grand jury, will be taken by a special train to San Francisco and from there to San Quentin. Just when they will be transferred has not been determined. It is expected that Sheriff W. A. Hammett will keep the time secret if he can. The train will probably leave Los Angeles at night. The schedule of the special train will be kept secret and the time of the prisoners' arrival in San Francisco will not be given out.

It is now definitely known that Los Angeles and not Indianapolis will be the scene of the trial of the McNamaras at this present, and that startling developments may be expected within the next few weeks. The first testimony, it is understood, will involve California developments of the plot which it is asserted, has been directed in District Attorney Fredericks here and through him to the federal authorities.

Orrie McManigal, the man whose confession was the basis of the case against the McNamaras, will take a similar part in the government work. His story will probably be told again to the federal Grand Jury. Malcolm McLaren, William J. Burns's personal representative here, has been in conference with Oscar Lawler and has outlined the testimony that McManigal will give.

What the prisoners will do in San Quentin prison will not be determined for some time. After the suspense of the men had been relieved by the sentences, Judge Bordwell had inquired what their trades were. John J. is admitted to the bar in Indiana, but that will be of no avail to him in prison. Jim said that he had been a printer. There may be some field in that line for him.

John asked Attorney Darrow to telegraph his aged mother in Ohio the news of their sentences. "Clarence," he said, "I wish you would send a telegram to mother. She feared the worst, and I would like her to get the news direct." Mr. Darrow did this at once.

Knocked Out Gas Cocks.

One of the most astonishing revelations to-day comes from the lips of Detective Burns. On reading McNamara's confession, he said:

"That's only half the truth. Why doesn't Jim McNamara tell how a hundred of the gas cocks and flood-it with gas the place where the suit case filled with dynamite was put?' he asked.

"If he told that, they could be convinced anyone that he did not intend the entire destruction of the Times building and its occupants?"

A Chicago dispatch says Burns made another attack on Samuel Gompers, declaring that the president of the American Federation of Labor knew of the McNamara' guilt long before it was publicly confessed.

"Just after the arrest of the McNamaras," said Burns, "Gompers made an attack on me, calling the whole thing a 'put up job.' Then Gompers came to Indianapolis and consulted with the executive board of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, which, there is evidence to show, had voted to pay to John J. McNamara $2,000 per month, for which he should render no accounting, and which, there is evidence to show, was used in the dynamiting operations of the McNamaras and Ortie McManigal."

Crowd Laughed in Court.

Amid the tense excitement as the brothers heard their fate, yesterday, the spectators actually found humor in the situation.

Captain Fredericks has a harsh voice, the voice of a typical prosecutor, and it rasped and snarled as he laid before the judge James B. McNamara's confession of the last plotted sixteen sticks of dynamite with the denial of an intention to kill. They laughed.

Again there were more laughs as Captain Fredericks placed before the Court "Jim" McNamara's "regrets that these unfortunate men lost their lives."

"Is that statement correct?" and Captain Fredericks appealed to "Jim."

"It is," answered the prisoner, rising his head unsteadily.

After the case was ended District Attorney Fredericks went back wearily to his office, sat down at his desk, and said, "I am through with those two men.

"Is there any information they could give you that you want?"

"No, nothing. I have not asked them to tell us anything about any others involved in this dynamiting, and I do not intend to. We do not need them, anyway. We have enough evidence against all the men we want, without their information. They are of no use to me."

"Will you say what you want?"

"I want only M. A. Schmidt and David Caplan. If they are turned up, I'll call the account settled as far as I am concerned.

"Do you expect any one to turn them up?"

"Yes, I do. I think we shall have them soon."

"Then there is nothing further for you to do?"

"No, except to assist the United States District Attorney with the evidence he have."

Will Await Federal Jury.

Whether the McNamaras eventually testify before the United States jury or not, Sheriff Hammel will hold them here as long as there is any indication that they may do so. The sheriff will make no move to transport the men to the Coast until he is told by Assistant District Attorney Began that they have refused to testify.

"The Grand Jury is to meet Thursday, and at that time preparations for a broad investigation of the transportation of dynamite on the trains, and the use of the United States mails for soliciting funds for the McNamara defense are expected.

In spite of all reports to the contrary, Clarence S. Darrow today prepared a statement that the brothers will not furnish information against any one suspected of complicity in their dynamiting.

Mr. Darrow issued a statement in justification of his conduct.

Mr. Darrow's statement follows:

"I entered this case with the greatest reluctance, and only after the most earnest persuasion. I did it unselfishly. I have for many years given my time and best ability to the cause of labor and the poor.

"I have been here six months, and spent many troubled days and sleepless nights trying to run down every clue and make every possible investigation, and trying to do the best I could for my clients and the cause that I served. I had able associates, who gave their best efforts and their best services through it all.

Never a Chance of Acquittal.

"From the first there was never the slightest chance to win. To those who say it would have been better to have gone to trial and suffer complete defeat, I could call attention to the fact that there were thirty or forty hotel registers, three in Los Angeles, many in San Francisco and others in different parts of the country. There were scores of witnesses to identify J. B. McNamara as being present practically on the very day, and one at least, in the building. There was overwhelming evidence on all hands which no one could have successfully met or would.

"If the State had put on its case, we could not trust that the defendants on the stand to deny the facts. We could not prove an alibi. We could not prove it was not here. The failure to do so would have been as much of an admission as it was to-day.

"We were confronted with the situation of dragging our case, perhaps for years, with nothing but the gallows at the end, and no chance to raise any doubt in a thinking mind, and in the meantime collecting money from thousands of people who could not know the facts.

Could Only Prolong Case.

"To go on under such circumstances would have been madness and only have postponed an evil until it would have been a still greater evil and the consequences graver than they are now.

"All of this was thoroughly understood by my associates and no one hesitated about accepting it. We acted as we thought right and best and will take the consequences of the act. I am conscious of no way in which we could have benefited ourselves and not save the lives of our clients in the disposing of this case at this time. Our first duty as lawyers and as men was to the living in our charge and our duty to the cause called for the same action.

"From the beginning I have been watching and working to this end. My work is accomplished if, I am reconciled to the result.

"For myself, personally, I have spent many years in this cause, and I have not believed in it. I would have abandoned it when I was young and ambitious. In some form I shall continue in it to the end. I have always fought and all my days I shall attend or malice to any one, recognizing that in this great drama and in that great struggle with the class that all men of both sides are helpless as to themselves and are but acting a part that is forced upon them by a bitter conflict which only right being between capital and labor can ever end.

"If people misjudge my motive, I can only say for myself that I have acted unselfishly and from devotion alone, and I have always been ready and fairly able to take upon myself all the responsibilities for my actions and I shall continue to do it as long as I have the strength.

"I do not beg anybody's friendship or sympathy in this matter. I have the consciousness that I have done everything that I could do, and have acted in the way that is best for all in this world-wide conflict. If anything more is asked from me by either side they will find me ready when the time comes."

Statement by Judge.

Justice Bordwell has issued a formal statement giving his views as to the McNamara trial, and especially what brought about its termination. The statement follows:

"In a spirit of indifference to everything in the McNamara cases, save the facts and the law applicable thereto, I deem it due to the court and to this community that I should make a brief and public statement regarding the circumstances attending the withdrawal of those cases, together with sufficient comment to indicate the views on such circumstances. This is done in the hope of correcting, in some degree, some misconceptions due to erroneous publications and particularly to an article which appeared in a Los Angeles newspaper on the 2d instant, over the signature of Lincoln Steffens.

"In the first place, the claim or suggestion that the termination of the cases was due to the efforts of himself and other outsiders who undertook to influence the officers of the court—other than the judge—is without justification in fact.

"I also wish to denounce the claims of that gentleman and of other persons for him that the change of plea from "not guilty" to "guilty" was due to his efforts or promises and influence. He is correct in the statement that the court was not a party to any negotiations for what he terms a "compromise" of these cases, but there is no ground for any claim that he influenced the proceedings to come to an agreement in the matter. The district attorney acted entirely without regard to Mr. Steffens and on lines decided upon before the latter appeared on the scene.

"Bribery Caused Pleas."

"As to the defence, the public can rely on it that the developments of last week as to the bribery and attempted bribery of jurors in the James B. McNamara case were the efficient cause of the change of pleas which suddenly brought the cases to an end. The district attorney could have had James B. McNamara's plea of guilty long ago if he had been willing to dismiss the cases against his brother, but he refused, insisting that the latter was guilty and should suffer punishment.

"The first proposition from those interested in the defence was that James B. McNamara should change his plea from "not guilty" to "guilty" on condition that he should not be sentenced to death and that his brother should go free. The district attorney would not agree.

"Afterward emissaries from the defence brought to the district attorney the proposition that John B. McNamara would plead guilty and be sentenced to death if the court so ordered, provided his brother be saved, but the district attorney still would not agree.

"Those interested in the defence continued to urge his acceptance of the last proposition for ten days or more, and until the bribery developments revealed the desperation of the defence and paralyzed the effort to save the brother. Then it was that the change of pleas of both these men was forthcoming.

"The motion broached in the Steffens article that the district attorney in commission of the crimes as confessed to-day are "the case" is offensive not to common intelligence and repellent to the conscience of all just men. I say nothing of the abhorrence of the law for such sentiment, and I am confident that the district attorney was not influenced by any such sentiment in considering the proposal that the defendants should withdraw the pleas of "not guilty."

"Upon the entries of the pleas of "guilty" both defendants placed themselves upon the mercy of the court and the responsibility, sole and individual, developed upon the court to determine the punishment. That some mitigation of the extreme penalties demandable by the outraged law might be expected in consequence of the change of the pleas in these cases is in accordance with the principle commonly accepted in the administration of criminal jurisprudence.

"The defendants has not been disappointed in these cases. At the same time the duty of the court in fixing the penalties in these cases would have been unperformed had it been swayed in any degree by the hypothetical policy favored by Mr. Steffens or, by the way, in a professed anarchist that the judgment of the court should be directed to the promotion of compromise in the controversy between "capital" and "labor."

"The lesson taught by the cases is that the law must be vigorously enforced against all offenders—whether they be rich or poor, high or low, capitalists or laborers—and that only by obedience to the law can society be maintained or its blessings enjoyed.

GOMPERS GLAD DEATH SENTENCE WAS NOT IMPOSED

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—"I am glad a death sentence was not imposed. I am opposed to capital punishment under any circumstances. I think the sentences given both men were appropriate to their crime."

This was the statement of Samuel Gompers when asked if he was satisfied with the punishment meted out to the McNamaras in Los Angeles.

"I would like to make one statement," continued Mr. Gompers, after being asked to make it, and that is concerning the statement made by United States District Attorney Miller of Indianapolis as to the wisdom and generosity of the American Federation of Labor. I want to say that if Miller has a conscience excite against me or anybody else, let him go ahead and prosecute it. It is not for him to say whether my leadership is wise or not. I welcome his criticism a gratuitous and unwarranted impertinence. Miller has no right to place himself on a pedestal. I purpose to stand true to the men of labor."

Desires Peace.

Mr. Gompers was asked if it were true that he and other labor leaders were advising "an era of pacification" in the matter of calling strikes in the future until the country had forgotten the McNamara case.

"All I can say to that is," replied Mr. Gompers, "that when employers treat labor as fairly as organized labor treats employers there will be industrial peace. The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor is the greatest conciliatory board that ever existed anywhere. It desires peace and is always ready to settle differences half way."

Again Mr. Gompers was asked the question that has been put to him practically every time he has been interviewed since the McNamara pleaded guilty, namely, as to whether he had any knowledge of any of the many cases of violence cited by the National Erectors' Association as having been perpetrated by labor men.

Says He Isn't Afraid.

"Again I repeat I have not," said Mr. Gompers, emphatically. "If I had any knowledge I would consider myself a accessory to the crimes. If ever I am called upon to defend any charges that I have knowledge of, or to defend any of these cases, I shall not be afraid to do so.

"Mr. Gompers, did the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union ever receive any money from other organizations during the time the McNamara brothers were active in their dynamiting plots?"

"I am not sure, but I am under the impression that they did not receive one dollar from any outside source," was the reply.

Frank Morrison added to his statement in regard to the funds raised by the American Federation of Labor for the McNamaras' defence by saying that in one time a pamphlet would be published containing an itemized account showing where every penny of the money went.

Mr. Morrison further said that Federation officials have been in communication with Darrow concerning the bribery charges growing out of the case.

Thus far no labor leader of rank here has expressed any opinion to President Gompers on the contrary, it has been asserted that practically all of Mr. Gompers here crystalized a strong sentiment in his favor.

$170,000 OF FUND FOR DEFENCE WAS PAID TO DARROW

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Up to October 25, when the last statement was made by Frank Morrison, the American Federation of Labor had collected from the various international labor unions the McNamara defence fund $194,612.53.

In the statement issued by Secretary Morrison it was shown how the fund was distributed and an explanation of why such a large amount was given Attorney Clarence S. Darrow. The statement and postscript are as follows:

EXPENDITURES.

Clarence S. Darrow	$170,000.00
Lee M. Rappaport, Indianapolis attorney	8,500.00
Henry G. Seyfried, Indianapolis attorney	2,500.00
Frank L. Mulholland, Toledo attorney	250.10
For McNamara buttons	1,120.00
Printing McNamara stamps	108.08
Representatives visiting conventions and organizations	591.00
Printing and mailing literature	1,133.15
Postage	780.00
Expenses incurred relative to McNamara files	250.20
Refunds	16.50
Total	$184,858.93

SUMMARY.

Receipts	$194,612.53
Expenditures	184,858.93
Balance on hand Oct. 25, 1911	9,753.60

The executive representatives of international unions held at Indianapolis, June 29, 1911, decided that money collected should be forwarded to Clarence S. Darrow, and he should pay attorney fees and all expenses incurred.

Besides the amounts received by the American Federation of Labor, it is said the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers collected about $170,000 in assessments from its members.

DEFENCE BOARD MOVES TO RESIST FEDERAL CHARGES

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 6.—The original McNamara defence committee appointed to collect funds for the tri-structural iron workers at Los Angeles has become a permanent body, and to-day set in motion a movement to resist the federal charges of a national dynamiting plot, involving the names of "men higher up" in labor circles. This action followed a meeting of representatives of organized labor here, when a vote of confidence was given to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

This means a bitter legal war which will be fought out to a finish. Both sides are aroused to the highest pitch and no quarter will be asked or given.

Federal agents believe that the confession of the McNamara brothers in Los Angeles form the opening chapter in a scheme to bring actual charges of a nation-wide conspiracy to violence in the name of labor.

Never in the history of the differences between labor and capital has there been a struggle which promises such intense bitterness as the battle which is just being inaugurated.

Will Raise More Funds.

A movement has been set afoot to levy contributions from organized labor to assist the case. The McNamara defence committee has voted to demand the resignation of Detective William J. Burns and Walter Drew of the National Erectors' Association on charges of kidnapping for forcibly taking John J. McNamara and James B. McNamara from this State after they were arrested on charges of dynamiting in Los Angeles.

U. S. District Attorney Miller, who is in charge of the federal end of the federal investigation, has become a central figure in the fight which promises to have Indianapolis for a battleground.

In an interview Mr. Miller scored Samuel Gompers, saying that Gompers was not a St. Isadore for organized labor.

This statement has had the effect of inflaming the bitterness into actual hostility, despite the assertion of Mr. Drew in New York that the National Erectors Association is not "hounding" Mr. Gompers.

Labor leaders have already begun to send out letters to the heads of locals, and it is likely that with in a few days special members of unions will be held throughout the United States to discuss the "national dynamiting plot," as it has become to be known.

Say Responsibility Was Personal.

Local officials, especially those of the iron workers, look upon the crimes to which the McNamaras confessed as cases of individual responsibility. They deny that the union was cognizant or that these outrages were perpetrated in the name of organized labor. The declaration of war addressed to union leaders in the country over bears the signature of James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical union; Hugo Miller; second vice-president of the same organization; Jacob Fischer, secretary-treasurer of the Barbers' International Union of America; John F. McNee, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; Thomas L. Hughes, secretary of the same organization; William D. Boyce, president of the Bricklayers', Masons' and Plasterers' International Union of America; William Dobson, secretary of the Bricklayers' Union; Frank Duffy, secretary of the conference; Thomas Neale, treasurer of the Carpenters' union; Robert Glocklein, president of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders; James W. Vaughan, secretary-treasurer of the Boilermakers; John W. Kegan of the Machinists' International Union, and Edgar A. Perkins, president of the Indiana State Federation of Labor.

It has been learned that the National Erectors' Association is making plans to secure a Federal grand jury investigation in Pittsburg, where there are a number of great erecting firms which have suffered from dynamite outrages. A conference of union leaders, called and presided over in the city by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, a few years ago to discuss means of unionizing the plants of the Steel Trust, is to be the subject of the inquiry. It is said.

LAY RICHESON DEFENCE PLANS

The several lawyers engaged as counsel for the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, who is awaiting trial for the alleged murder of Avis Linnell, are busily engaged framing the defence of the accused minister. Daily conferences are being held, and although all the attorneys concerned refuse to discuss the case, it is known they are laying the foundation of a defence they believe will prove impregnable to the attack of the prosecution. Just what line of defence will be followed is still a matter of conjecture.

It is probable Attorney John S. Lee of Lynchburg, Va., the noted Southern criminal lawyer, who has won several cases with his eloquent oratory, will argue for the defence. He has been urged to do so by William A. Morse, associate senior counsel for Richeson, and it is more than likely Attorney Lee will accept.

The government is doing practically nothing in regard to the case. District Attorney Pelletier has the case well in hand, and is convinced with the mass of evidence possessed by the prosecution he will have no trouble in presenting the case when Richeson is brought to trial in the Superior Criminal Court on January 15.

A VICTIM OF SCROFULA

Had Large Bunches and Was Unable to Work—Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

NO. BARRINGTON, N. H.—"I had scrofula, causing large bunches under my arms, which sometimes broke open and discharged. At times I was unable to work; not only were the bunches and sores very painful and disagreeable, but my health was so run down that I had no strength.

"Many medicines failed to do me any good, and when a friend recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla I had made up my mind that nothing could cure me, and I should simply have to bear my affliction. But Hood's Sarsaparilla worked like a charm. It drove out the impurities or the germs, or whatever may be the cause of scrofula. The bunches disappeared, and when I had taken six bottles all signs of scrofula had vanished.

"Of course I am glad to recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to any sufferer from scrofula or impure blood, as it has absolutely proven to be in my case a wonderful purifying medicine." Elisha E. Locke.

The great mass of people, as they themselves say, "can not afford to be sick" if compelled to employ physicians and nurses. They are the millions of intelligent, prudent and economical men and women that have come to know the great usefulness of Hood's Sarsaparilla and other good proprietary medicines.

Hood's Sarsaparilla effects its wonderful cures, not simply because it contains sarsaparilla, but because it combines the utmost remedial values of more than twenty different ingredients, and there is no substitute.

Get Hood's Sarsaparilla to-day in the usual liquid form or in the chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs.

Kellogg Durland, Who Took Poison, and His Wife

Kellogg Durland, Jr., ended his life by poison. His wife committed suicide in Boston. Mrs. Durland is being sought by the police, and his wife is dead.

SEEK WOMAN IN DURLAND CASE

A woman whose identity has been carefully guarded by all those engaged in endeavoring to locate her in Boston is being sought by the New York insurance company which carried a $15,000 policy on the life of H. Kellogg Durland, to learn the details of the last few days before he died in the Relief Hospital from poison.

Reports have reached the insurance company, and have been turned over to their detectives, who have been in Boston for several days, to the effect that this woman was seen with the author within a few hours of the time he boarded the train at the South Station on which his wife was returning to New York.

It is also declared that Durland spent much of his time during the last few days of his life in the company of this mysterious woman. Her name the officials of the insurance company are pursuing carefully.

All they will admit as to her identity is that she is known to her friends in New York as "Miss Z."

Medical Examiner George R. Magrath's finding that Harry Kellogg Durland, the author, was a suicide, was based on Durland's last letter, written to W. H. Farnsee, a long-time friend, who has been prominent in the investigation following Durland's death. This letter has just been made public.

It reads:

This tragedy is a terrible thing to have come into anyone's life. I deeply regret being the cause of its having been brought into yours.

I deserve unmeasured and endless hell for having questioned one who was so loyal and true as Genevieve. I simply could not understand nor comprehend so many things.

I have troubled you so infinitely already that perhaps a little more will not matter so much.

In the safe at home is a huge iron trunk, painted red. In it are many letters and papers of mine. Kindly have these all burned.

On the little bookshelf in the southeast corner of the library is a brown pasteboard box filled with picture postcards, etc., etc., to my mother. I think she would treasure these. Also some of my books which are in the library, and especially the poets. Her address you can get by telephoning Frank A. K. Boland, 24A Broadway to inquire.

The rest of the books in the library that are mine please forward to Louis Sesan, Spring Valley, N. Y., if it is not necessary to sell them, in which event please write him that it was my wish that he have them anyway.

I have written my letters and all is in readiness at hand. I am wholly ready. I am only pondering whether I should hold off just long enough to see that no one brings me in any way into that which is nothing to you, save the pain that you must suffer as a friend.

ROCKEFELLER LAKE STOLEN BY NEW YORK

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 6.—The mystery surrounding the sudden disappearance of a lake on John D. Rockefeller's estate at Pocantico Hills last week has been solved. It has been kidnaped by New York city, but not intentionally. The Croton Aqueduct runs through Mr. Rockefeller's estate about 200 feet underground, and the water from the lake flowed down into the aqueduct through a crevice. The same thing happened about twenty years ago, when another owner lived on Kyk Uit Hill.

CHINA'S REGENT HAS ABDICATED

PEKIN, Dec. 6.—Prince Chung, the regent and father of the Chinese Emperor, abdicated to-day. Shih Hsu, a Manchu prince, succeeds Chung as guardian of the throne.

Starvation, anarchy and bankruptcy menace all of China to-day as the result of the revolution. The war chests of both the Manchu government and of the young China revolutionary party have been drained. The government is unable to negotiate another loan and the rebels have exhausted their resources.

There is no law except where troops are stationed in sufficient numbers to uphold martial law. Throughout the greater part of the empire piracy and brigandage are rife. Famine frees the land, as crops have been devastated and hundreds of thousands of farmers driven from their homes. The greater part of southern China is a barren tract.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai continues his efforts to bring about peace. Through his private secretary to-day Premier Yuan issued from his official residence in Hsin Hu-Tung a statement to the effect that negotiations were proceeding satisfactorily and that the government had secured the co-operation of influential Chinese who have the confidence of imperialists and revolutionaries.

INCENDIARY AT WORK IN LYNN

State Officer Arthur G. Wells, after investigating three fires in widely separated parts of the city, destroyed one and a half story frame dwelling at No. 93 Jenness street, Lynn, to-day, declared that the fires were set and that an arrest probably would be made later in the day.

Mrs. Lenna Hutchins, who lives in the house with her son Meyer, narrowly escaped being burned to death. She was alone in the house at the time. The fire caused a damage of about $1,000.

Mrs. Hutchinson was awakened to find the house in flames and barely had time to slip on a coat and rush into the street before the stairs caught fire. She sounded an alarm and when the firemen reached the scene two distinct fires were burning inside the dwelling, one on the ground floor and the two others in different rooms on the floor above.

The building was practically doomed before the firemen arrived, and they confined their efforts mostly to saving surrounding property. The interior of the building was badly burned, and most of the roof was destroyed. The structure was owned by John Hamburg of Lynn.

Spirits for Rheumatism

The use of spirits in the treatment of rheumatism has proved an innovation among the medical profession. When mixed with certain other ingredients and taken properly it is said to be an almost infallible cure for rheumatism and backache. Here is the formula.

From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bedtime." Results come immediately. If the druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take some patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original one ounce sealed yellow package.

PACKERS SEEK MORE DELAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—Fearing they would have to fight yet another effort to bring the ten indicted millionaire packers of Chicago to trial as conspirators under the criminal section of the Sherman anti-trust law, Attorney James H. Wilkerson and his aides appeared in District Judge George A. Carpenter's court to-day to start the hearing of the most important trust prosecution now before any American court.

The courtroom was packed with attorneys and others at the hour for the arrival of the ten men in court.

Counsel for the packers intimated that they had not given up hope of securing further delay in the trial, despite the refusal of the Supreme Court to grant a stay until the constitutionality of the law could be passed upon.

Along what line this hope lay none would reveal. Eighty-seven veniremen and ten witnesses were summoned to appear to-day. The witnesses included many independent packers and other well-known business men from all sections of the country.

TAFT IS IN GOOD CHEER SOCIETY

Miss Theora Carter, president of the National Society of Good Cheer, writes the AMERICAN from Seattle, Wash., that President Taft is now an honorary member of the Good Cheer Society, also that Christmas Day is a splendid time for sending flowers, books and other gifts to sick people.

Bostonians will remember Miss Carter, the bit of living sunshine who was in this city in April, 1910, and who seemed graciously on reporters and all others who came within the cheerful glance of her bright eyes. Her word to all was:

"Be cheerful—you can't help being cheerful if you just let yourself be so."

She radiated good cheer, smiles, optimism and "don't worry." She launched a Boston Society of Good Cheer and went on her uplifting way.

Now Miss Carter writes from her Pacific coast home to the AMERICAN this little note:

"Please, Mr. Editor, find a corner of your paper for the Good Cheer article enclosed and you will help some people to enjoy sending flowers or books to hospitals. Wishing you good cheer. Yours truly,

"THEORA CARTER, President.
"Society of Good Cheer."

The Good Cheer article enclosed by Miss Carter and which the AMERICAN cheerfully prints is as follows:

"The Hon. William Howard Taft, President of the United States of America, is now an honorary member of the Society of Good Cheer, and he initiated himself with smiles and cheer when he ordered all the flowers showered upon him in San Francisco, to be sent to St. Luke's and St. Mary's Hospitals of that city.

"More and more it is coming to be recognized that the men and women convalescing in hospitals and in boarding homes need expressed love to help them in the twilight days of health. When the doctor leaves, the patient begins to find an added need for friends, and mental recreation; some get it at home, thousands lose in a sea of despond, weary, worn, unfriended.

"Now, these are the days when resolutions come to our minds and peace and harmonic form. In a few days good will to all will reign for one harmonious day. Why not make it a good cheer day for the people in the hospitals and the convalescing? Never care about the name or the religious creed of the place; send books, magazines, flowers to any hospital; just send, you will find an added joy to Christmas and to yourself.

"You can, like the President, become an honorary member of the Society of Good Cheer. THEORA CARTER, President.

And things are bound to happen which have never happened yet.
We'll straighten up and pay our bills and swear off when we get—
"Only eight minutes to Park Street."

We'll all be better citizens. We'll lead a pious life.

$1,098,307 FOR SULTAN'S GEMS

PARIS, Dec. 6.—Tremendous prices continued to mark the sale of the Sultan's jewels at the Hotel Drouot here. A total of $76,277 was realized on the objects sold during the day. The grand total to date is $1,098,307, and there are still five sessions to come.

As at the preceding sessions, the one conducted to-day was attended by an unusually brilliant throng and by excited bidding, greater than that marking any sale in recent years.

The sum of $22,340 was given for a corsage ornament in the shape of arches and garlands reunited by ornaments and all set with brilliants and rose diamonds.

A necklace composed of diamonds and rose diamonds brought $16,400; brooch set with large diamonds, surmounted by roses and diamonds sold for $5,000, while another brooch in a motive of flowers set with diamonds and rubies brought $1,000.

A pair of ear-rings composed of medium-sized diamonds relieved by two small diamonds and a mobile pendant diamond sold for $900 and a brooch in the shape of a star set with diamonds and enameled was bought for $5,800. A diamonds bracelet bearing a flower of diamonds set on two bands of large diamonds interspersed with rose diamonds was secured for $12,400.

At yesterday's sale of this collection $2,800 was paid for a necklace of diamonds with a large diamond as its central motive; $2,700 for a ring set with a large rectangular diamond surrounded by smaller ones, $2,440 for a large ruby ring, and $2,500 for a brooch in the form of a branch with leaves set with diamonds and rose diamonds.

WORLD'S CLEANEST CITY, CLAIM MADE FOR WORCESTER

WORCESTER, Dec. 6.—Figures given out by Water Register George C. Hunt as a result of a census just completed by his water meter readers, indicate that Worcester should be the cleanest city in the world. The census enumerators report that there are in Worcester 25,474 bathtubs in 14,701 dwelling houses for 32,364 families. These figures, Water Registrar Hunt says, show that Worcester residents are better provided with bathing facilities than those of any other city in the country and probably in the world. And the bathing facilities keep pace with the growth in population, as last year there were 24,086 baths in 14,147 houses for 31,280 families.

PERSIA DARES CZAR TO FIGHT

TEHERAN, Dec. 4.—Persia has decided to make W. Morgan Shuster, the young American treasurer-general, an issue at war, unless intervention prevents hostilities. Persia's counter ultimatum to Russia demanding that the main body of the Russian army of invasion should not proceed south of Kasbin expired to-day. The alternative was offensive operations on Persia's part.

Nearly 500 Russian Cossacks, comprising the advance guard of the Russian army, had already entered this city, and it was the presence of these troops which forced Persia to take decisive action.

Persia has been quietly making defensive preparations, and a number of Persian Cossacks have been moved north from the southern provinces.

Mr. Shuster, whose retention in the Persian government has led to the present imbroglio, has given no indication of withdrawing, and he was assured to-day that he has the support of all political factions.

ROURKE STIRS UP HYDE PARK

Commissioner of Public Works Louis A. Rourke visited Hyde Park to-day for inspection and to confer with heads of departments.

A conference lasting nearly an hour was held in the selectmen's hall, with Patrick Rooney, superintendent of streets; Clarence Morris, town engineer, and Superintendent Fish of the water department.

On his way to the town yards the commissioner's automobile became blocked in Cleary square. The Bay State Car Company was repairing the tracks. There was a service car, a rack full of hay and two coal wagons in the middle of the street. Mr. Rourke waited ten minutes, then jumped from his machine, approached the car inspector and told a few things not heard by the reporter.

Immediately there was a hurry and a scurry. The car moved on. The hay rack and coal wagon moved to one side and the Commissioner passed through a narrow lane just showing the folks how to clear a congested street.

TRY NATURE'S METHOD TO CURE YOUR COLD

You Don't Need Drugs to Conquer Catarrh and Grip

Colds, catarrh and influenza are the result of poisons in the system. The way to cure them is to drive out the poisons. Drugs have the opposite result.

Virgin oil of pine is the natural curative agent for all ailments of this character. It expels the diseased discharges and heals the affected tissues. It will cure the worst cold inside of twenty-four hours and give speedy and permanent relief to cases of chronic catarrh, foul breath, rheumatism and "that grippy feeling."

Ask your druggist for a half-ounce vial of virgin oil of pine. Mix the contents with two ounces of glycerine and a tumbler full of pure whiskey. A teaspoonful of this preparation every four hours will completely cure the most aggravated cold. Be certain to get the genuine virgin oil of pine, which comes in wooden containers bearing the name of the Leach Chemical Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, who guarantee its purity and freshness. Substitutes are dangerous.

From the Heart of the Wheat

Comes the delicate flour.

There's only a little.

To pick this cream of the flour from the ordinary, we sift it ten times—

Ten times through fine silk.

The rest we deem unfit.

Do you want all of the flour, or just the best of the flour?

Will you have milk and cream, or just the cream, when both cost an equal price?

There can't be any question.

Then in ordering, Madam, don't merely say "flour." That means any flour.

Say the flour you want—say—

GILBERT PARKER SEES "OFFENCE" BY RUSSIA

By SIR GILBERT PARKER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Russia, of course, has a right to pursue any policy that she may choose, provided she is willing to isolate herself from the rest of the world and from the sanction of nations. But your treaty of 1832 with Russia was based upon equality of treatment in citizenship, or else the United States would never have made it.

The question is whether the spirit of that treaty is being carried out by Russia. The United States has provided for hundreds of thousands of Russian subjects homes better than they ever had in Russia, and under conditions for which they never labored and an unearned increment of a great civilization as that of the United States.

Every man that comes from Russia to the United States to found a home finds here opportunities for making his bread as well as social, municipal and industrial conditions which he never found and could not find in his own land.

The American people have labored to build up a great citizenship founded upon social order and social and industrial opportunity. All of these they give any Russian who comes to make his home here. But it would appear that Russia denies to a reputable American subject the right to enter her country simple because he is a Jew.

I have no hesitancy in saying that this is one offence against civilization which civilization would be warranted in resenting. I think that Russia might be justified in saying to the United States:

There is certain type of Russian Jew, maybe anarchical or nihilistic, whose return to Russia would only do evil there, and therefore we wish to safeguard ourselves against such citizens of the United States."

Russia might ask the United States to see that certain conditions were fulfilled in granting passports to American Jews going to Russia but that she should attempt to enforce her present view in this time of world development is worse than folly. It is dangerous to a decree. Russia ought to see that sooner or later she must give way on this question. And she can give way now in good grace; she could give way with only less grace when the American people become exasperated by an injustice to American citizenship.

Personally I believe that the feeling of the people of this country will be resented by Russia, and that she will see the impossibility of preserving a prohibition which is against the spirit of all modern diplomacy and all international exchange.

QUICK ACTION ON RUSSIA EXPECTED AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—That the temper of the House—in fact of Congress generally—is far from friendly toward Russia is strongly evidenced by the tone and number of joint resolutions which have been introduced in the last two days calling for the abrogation of the treaty of 1832 between the United States and Russia as a result of the refusal by the latter to honor passports in the possession of American Jews.

The question will come before the House Committee on Foreign Affairs Monday, when a hearing will be given on Mr. Sulzer's joint resolution calling for the abrogation of the treaty. A number of bills of similar nature also have been introduced in the House, and speedy action is expected by that body.

President Taft will probably send a message to Congress on the Russian Jewish passport question as soon as a reply is received from the Russian government by Curtis Guild, American Ambassador at St. Petersburg upon the request of the United States for information as to Russia's present attitude upon this question.

Several days ago Secretary Knox instructed Ambassador Guild to ascertain how far the Russian government will go to settle the question through diplomatic channels and to learn whether there is any way in which Russia will meet the desires of American Jews.

A preliminary report has been received from Ambassador Guild, but a more complete report is expected before any action will be taken by the State Department or the President. The fact that Russia has not closed the case immediately and that the diplomatic correspondence is being continued is being construed here as an encouraging sign.

The Russian ambassador called on Secretary Knox to announce, it is learned from a most authoritative source, that his government will not receive the petition of hostility toward Hebrews, even when they are American citizens and bear United States passports.

Would Abrogate Treaty.

Senator Culberson introduced a joint resolution declaring in favor of the abrogation of the treaty of 1832. The grounds for the resolution are that the treaty, which provides for and maintains a most mutual fair treatment of the citizens of the two countries, has been violated.

The conference between the secretary and the ambassador was held by request of President Taft. The President was desirous that the very last word from the Russian government be laid before the Cabinet whose chief business was discussion of the Hebrew passport question.

The Russian ambassador, it is declared by well informed authorities, merely stated a position his government has taken since the commercial negotiations regarding the right to make its own reports, and that if any exception of importance is taken it must be action on the matter by the United States. Since taken first by the United States has never the treaty of 1832 this position has never changed. Russia holds that treatment of Jews within her borders as her own personal affair.

Affair at Acute Stage.

The fact that a state call was made at a morning hour on Tuesday when Thursday is the day for the regular call of the ambassador, is evidence that the situation has reached an acute stage.

It was learned today that Ambassador Guild, who was asked a few days ago by President Taft to renew at the Russian foreign office the request of the American government that his attache be modified, had made his report. The tenor of his report was largely identical with the instructions conveyed by the Russian ambassador.

Mr. Guild, it is asserted by those in a position to know, impressed upon the Russian officers that grave embarrassment is arising out of Russia's attitude because of the fact that the Constitution of the United States is silent on race and religion. This country is not the keeper of the attitude of being obliged to tolerate from the foreign government's discrimination provided by its own constitution.

It was urged that no treaty or other constitutional agreements might move as elsewhere unfavorable sentiment, but any American citizen denied entrance into Russia would appeal to this country for a constitutional guarantee of this right.

Both Mr. Guild's going and the reply of the Russian government, as conveyed through the Ambassador, discussed long and earnestly at the Cabinet meeting. It was not definitely known on this side that Russia bases its refusal to extend courtesies to American Jews on the ground that this would be discrimination in their favor as it denies these courtesies to Jews from its own countries.

ONE OF LEADERS IN SOCIAL WAR AT NATIONAL CAPITAL

SOCIAL WAR STIRS CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—The merriest social war in many years bids fair to wrest the reins of social leadership from Mrs. Barney-Hemmick, Washington's Mrs. Astor, who, at fifty-nine years of age did not fear to marry Christian Hemmick, a society youth of twenty-six.

Now the Ward McAllister of Washington, Mr. Gibson has won to his side Mrs. Edson Bradley. Coincident with the rebellion of Mrs. Bradley came the announcement that she will not open her new $100,000 private theatre on Dupont Circle this Winter.

It was anticipated that his theatre would be opened by Mrs. Bradley in opposition to the Playhouse Club, the unique Thespian organization presided over by Preston Gibson and his set. This announcement presaged a bitter social war and ambitious society playwrights nerved their arms and pens to plays to be produced by one or another of the rival society managers.

Mrs. Bradley had enlisted the support of Mrs. Barney-Hemmick, then Mrs. Albert Clifford Barney, and it was arranged that she and the Bradleys should co-operate. Then a truce was suddenly declared between Mr. Gibson and the Bradleys, and now they have agreed to pool their social and dramatic interests, Mr. Gibson making the one provision that Mrs. Barney-Hemmick should be left out in the cold.

On her return from her Summer's honeymoon with her youthful husband, Mrs. Barney-Hemmick, prepared to battle against the Gibson-Bradley coalition. With all the old-time leadership she gathered a group of society folk and rehearsed them in tableaux vivant, which will be given on Thursday for the House of Mercy, one of her pet charities. It is certain that none of the Gibson-Bradley faction will attend, and society is watching with the greatest eagerness to see who will have the temerity to go.

Upon the success of these tableaux vivant as a function will depend the social fate of Mrs. Barney-Hemmick.

POLICE HUNT JOSEPHINE JOY

JOSEPHINE JOY, ACTRESS FOR WHOM POLICE SEARCH

PITTSBURG, Dec. 6.—Mrs. Elmer Sturtevant, known as Josephine Joy, a vaudeville actress, is being sought by the police to-day, following a verdict for William B. Sterling, the Erie, Pennsylvania, banker, who was defendant in an alienation suit for $35,000, brought by Elmer Sturtevant, husband of the actress.

Overwhelmed by evidence of blackmail, the prosecution in the suit threw up their hands and quit when the case was called and a verdict was given the defendant by Judge Charles P. Orr.

Sworn statements made recently before G. H. Breitller, a notary public of New York, by Van Ness Harwood and A. S. Phillips, New York reporters, and Mrs. Helen D. Jenkins, a wealthy woman of Gotham, who testified to jewel smuggling before the Federal Grand Jury in New York not long ago in Banker Allen's case.

Fare Makes Deposition.

Richard Parr, deputy surveyor of the port of New York, who figured prominently in the exposure of the sugar weighing frauds, also made a deposition.

Evidence was ready to be produced to show that Mrs. Sturtevant was in the blackmailing game because she liked it. Her husband, she is alleged to have said, she used as a catspaw. The names of men she had blackmailed from Boston to the Pacific coast were included in the evidence of the defence.

In the depositions the witnesses declared that Mrs. Sturtevant, while on the pretext of her Summer home at Passaic, confided to her interviewers and to Mrs. Jenkins that she was "one of the cleverest, best mulkers and confidence women in the country."

According to the deposition, among the rich men she admitted having fleeced, one was an easy old man named in the papers and said to be a Boston banker. He is said to have paid her tuition at a Boston school for music and later to have been "shaken down" for $1,000.

Offered Her Half Interest.

Mrs. Jenkins, who lives at No. 616 Riverside Drive, New York, in her deposition testified that Mrs. Sturtevant made her acquaintance in the hope that the former would introduce her to some of her millionaire friends. She testified that the actress offered to give her a half interest in the first two victims and 25 per cent. interest in all the others. Mrs. Jenkins introduced her to the ones she desired to blackmail.

Almer V. Sturtevant brought the suit against Sterling several months ago, charging him with the alienation of the affections of his wife. Sturtevant entered a lengthy bill of particulars, making serious accusations against the defendant. Sturtevant alleged at the time that Sterling became acquainted with his wife in Erie, and immediately afterward there followed a number of suppers, midnight rides in automobiles, and many clandestine meetings, ending with a sensational scene in a hotel in Buffalo a year ago.

REED ANTHONY TO WED MISS COLT JAN. 17

The wedding of Miss Primrose Colt, daughter of Mrs. Samuel P. Colt and niece of Colonel Samuel P. Colt of Providence, to Reed Anthony of Boston will take place on January 17 at Providence. Bishop Perry will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Plate of St. Stephen's Church and Dr. Locke of Bristol. The maid of honor will be Miss Beatrice Colt, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids the Misses Virginia Bowley, Gladys Baker, Ruth Anthony of Boston and Helena Mc-Cauley of Toredale, Pa. The wedding date is the same as that of the parents and two sisters of the bride.

LISTS PRESENTS IN LOVE SUIT

Collapse of her husband's suit for alleged alienation of affections has been followed by startling revelations of the defence's case.

That she gave Charles J. Gorman, a theatrical manager, three automobiles and that he often consulted with her upon the purchase of hosiery, clothing and articles of personal adornment for her, are among the declarations in the Hindoo suit for alleged breach of promise entered in the Superior Court by Mrs. Alexene Hadlock of Winthrop, widow of Harold D. Hadlock, a Boston attorney.

Mrs. Hadlock declares she paid Gorman's office rent, telephone bills and other expenses of his business. She also alleges that she provided clothing, living apartments, food, laundry service for him when he was without means to provide for himself. She says she believed he loved her and that she loved him and relied upon his promise to marry her, and at all times she has been ready and willing to marry him, but he has refused to carry out his program.

Mrs. Hadlock declares that Gorman courted and protested his love for her for several years in messages sent by mail and by telephone, and by oft-repeated avowals of undying affection, made by him in person.

She alleges that in token of his affection for her, he gave her various gifts, namely: A solitaire diamond ring, a gold locket inscribed with her and his initials which also contained a photograph of him; glass tableware engraved with the surname initials of the defendant as a contribution to the equipment of the home to which he promised to take her when he made her his wife.

She further alleges that for many years he called upon her and dined with her as her guest every Sunday, consulted with her in the purchase of hosiery, clothing and articles of personal adornment for herself, for many of which, she alleges, he paid with money procured from her.

He deferred marriage on one occasion, she alleges, on the ground that the divorce granted to a former wife legally barred his marriage at that time. On another occasion, she says, he postponed the wedding because of a death in his family. During all this time he escorted her to social gatherings and places of public amusement, introduced her to his friends and acquaintances and conducted himself generally and openly as her accepted lover.

Relying upon his declarations and manifestations of love and devotion, and in consideration of his promise to marry her and sympathizing with him in the adversity which pursued, or seemed to pursue, his business enterprises, and being affectionately solicitous to aid him, she alleges, she gave him large sums of money.

WABASH CONTROL LOST TO GOULDS

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Following an announcement that financial readjustment and reorganization of the Wabash railroad has been decided by the directors, it is freely said here that control of the line has once lost to the Goulds. The fact that Winslow Hayes, the new chairman, occupies a similar position with the Western Maryland, once a Gould line, but now owned by the Rockefellers, gave rise to the belief that it might be acquired by those interests.

Although one of the leading interests in the Wabash reorganization is authority for the statement that the readjustment will not involve receivership, that point is yet to be settled.

It will not be decided until those who are to assume control of the property have made a careful examination into its condition.

The announcement of the reorganization was a surprise to those who have followed the fortunes of this property, it having been generally believed that the reorganization plan of the Wheeling and Lake Erie-Wabash terminal roads would be accepted, thereby materially reducing Wabash's financial burden.

One of the unexpected incidents of the proposed reorganization is the naming of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. as syndicate managers. This firm owns the greater part if not all of the $6,000,000 note for which the Wabash is guarantor, but its introduction into the reorganized company is believed to imply Wall street quarters to have deeper significance.

Relations between Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Goulds have not been especially friendly since the unexpected withdrawal of the bankers from the Missouri Pacific financing early in the year.

Augustus Thomas and Jane Addams Debate on the Employment of Children on the Stage

Miss Jane Addams and Augustus Thomas, the playwright. Miss Adams takes issue with Miss Agnes Repplier in discussion of "Reasons For and Against the Employment of Children on the Stage," pointing out the dangers that confront child actors.

Auditors Told That Realism Is Demanded by Those Who Buy Tickets.

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Miss Jane Addams of Hull House and Owen R. Lovejoy of the National Child Labor League; Miss Agnes Repplier, the famous essayist, and Augustus Thomas, the playwright, met on the stage of the Hudson Theatre to discuss Reasons For and Against the Employment of Children on the Stage." The first two spoke against it. Miss Repplier and Mr. Thomas were for the appearance of children on the stage under proper conditions.

The two parties met only on the platform. Like Gilbert's Bishop in the Bab Ballads. "They argued up, they argued down, they also argued 'round about them," but not by any chance did they find a point of agreement.

How could they?

Miss Repplier would come no further down than the late lamented New Theatre of New York.

Miss Addams, the splendid practical worker, demanded of the stage that it should create illusion only.

Miss Repplier, the intellectual idealist, chose speech as realism and exquisite as her own essays, insists on realism, and wants children on the stage to exasperate childhood.

The Stage an Education.

Miss Addams, in a voice vibrating with emotion, depicted the physical and moral dangers of the stage and figuratively hauled the children off to put them—well, it wasn't exactly clear where she put them, but she seemed to intend them eventually for the shops.

Mr. Thomas, godfather to the stage child's cause and head of the dramatic "Uplift," gave out a formula for success in life, and for one awful moment it seemed as if we should all have to become stage children to acquire it, for, said Mr. Thomas:

"Our success in life depends upon the clearness of our mental vision in picturing to our mind that goal which we wish to attain and in holding to this picture. The theatre creates the most lasting and vivid impression, and to the eighty children who are employed during the year in New York their early theatrical training should be as valuable as a Rhodes scholarship to the ambitious young man."

Mr. Thomas agreed that the engagements were short and allowed for plenty of schooling, while the child's salary need his position still further.

Mr. Thomas paid a touching tribute to little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," who, when acted by a child, before the war, rendered a service to the cause of Freedom as great as that of any soldier on the field of battle.

According to Mr. Jovejoy, the last of the speakers, Mr. Thomas's statistics were incorrect. Many more than eighty children had obtained permits to act during the last year. The number rose up to over of 200. However, the children were better looked after than ever before through the agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. When objections were raised to permits being issued in fifty-five cases the objections were overruled in fifty cases in spite of the protests of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children by Mayor Gaynor himself, who issued permits to the child actors, he being the first Mayor to overrule the society's findings to such an extent.

What Becomes of Child?

A substitute for the child actor was sought by Miss Addams, who advised children's parts taken by girls of sixteen, the age at which children are permitted to perform in public for money.

She does not go so far as Dr. Charles Elliot, however, who says: "An actor of sixteen can easily impersonate a child of six since women of sixty often appear on the stage as children."

Miss Repplier began her speech "I am for children." So are we all. But in yesterday's dispute one thing was forgotten—what becomes of the child who is intelligent enough to act, who is forced to work but who is not allowed on the stage for Mr. Thomas is right, of course, in saying that it is only the exceptional child who lands and stays on the stage.

The child who has to contribute to the support of his family, and must begin at a tender age, is a blot on our civilization, but the blot is there just the same. Ask the tenement house inspectors, those who are of the sort of mothers and see things which elude the men. Ask the factory inspectors, ask hospital matrons, ask photographers and moving picture makers. They will tell you that the child who earns his living on the stage under the eye of New York is lucky.

The child who must work to support parents who are invalided, indigent or obdolent will be made to work, and the laws will be cleverly eluded while the work is done at home. If the child must work let it work in public, among the company of actors, who are famous for their kindness of heart as for some less pleasant qualities more often mentioned.

Flowers Made by Children.

A child of eighteen months went to the hospital recently suffering from a nervous disease, which was not easy to diagnose. The tenement house inspector told me that this baby had been taught to put small beads or pastilles into glue and take them out again, first as play, then a regular work hour by hour as the mother made a special kind of dress ornament for sale, and this aided her in her work. The baby became a nervous wreck at eighteen months from being forced to do this.

Many of our cheap flowers are made in part by children, not in factories, but in the homes where the work is given out. The children receive no wages. They merely work. One little girl of eleven said she wished "God had never made violets," then she wouldn't have to make them either.

The professional child model photographers works harder and longer hours than its little fellow on the stage. I know one of three years who had supported its family for a year and a half. It had no mother, and was loaned out to an aged grandmother, who had forgotten her maternity in her desire for money.

Of course, many children pose for these pictures, and it is made a delightful lark for them, though it seems money to their elders, but the child who, through some unfortunate circumstance, is forced to earn money may thank its stars if it can do so in the open.

It is the sordid, grinding work which goes on in the back room, and which is quickly hidden when the inspector comes around—the making of many thousands of little petals, the endless and monotonous work of sorting out beads or skeins of silk or other deadly manual tasks which deaden the child's heart and intellect and in the end sends it, as Hamlin Garlis said cheaply and vulgarly to perdition at sixteen.

HORSFALL HELD IN WOMAN DEATH CASE

James H. Horsfall of Lowell was arraigned in the Woburn District Court today on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. Ruth Kittredge, aged seventy-four years, at Wilmington, on November 11. The police claimed the woman was struck by Horsfall's automobile, receiving injuries which caused her death. In court to-day Horsfall waived examination and was held in $2,000 for the Grand Jury.

REAL ESTATE MEN TO DISCUSS PROBLEMS

The directors of the Boston Real Exchange have accepted the report of a committee which considered the question of holding periodical meetings for discussion of matters germane to real estate interests and for better acquaintance. A general committee of members will be appointed by President Charles Frances Adams, 2d, to meet at such times and places as it may determine.

Quick, Painless Way To Remove Hairs

(Beauty Culture.)

A chance discovery by a noted chemist has resulted in a new and harmless way to remove hairy growths without the least possible injury to the skin. A paste is made with ordinary powdered delatone and water and applied to the hairs not wanted. After two or three minutes this is rubbed off and with it comes every trace of hair. The skin is then washed and it is left white, firm and smooth.

The delatone treatment for superfluous hairs is so simple to use and so quick in action that no one is justified in employing the painful and costly electric needle. Delatone costs a dollar for an original-ounce package, and is worth every cent. Any druggist can supply it.

MARY STANHOPE GETS DIVORCE

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 6.—In the divorce docket of the Superior Court, wherein half a dozen applicants were granted decrees in twice as many minutes, the most prominent case was that of Mary Stanhope, who was granted a divorce from William E. Stanhope, owner of the Stanhope garage, on the ground of extreme cruelty.

She swore by deposition that her husband had struck, kicked and pounded her in a jealous rage, for which he was usually quite sorry, and on one occasion at least, he gave her a big bunch of hot house grapes as a peace offering.

Chauffeur Chester Dailey testified by deposition to the kind of treatment complained had received in his presence at different times.

NEW BROOKLINE SCHOOL OPENED

Brookline dedicated the new Michael Driscoll School and at the same time honored the man for whom it is named, who has been thirty-seven years on the town School Committee. A large crowd of citizens were on hand for the occasion and an address was delivered by George H. Martin, for many years secretary of the State Board of Education. A choir of twenty-five from the Brookline High School furnished music. The Rev. Thomas F. McManus of St. Lawrence's Church, Chestnut Hill, delivered the prayer, and with an invocation of divine blessing and the Rev. Harris G. Hale, pastor of the Leyden Congregational Church, closed them with a benediction.

BIG OUTDOOR SPORT LIST AT WELLESLEY

WELLESLEY, Dec. 6.—That many freshman girls in Wellesley College will enter organized outdoor sports next season was indicated after entrance lists had remained open for the first day. Scores of girls in all four classes have entered their names for outdoor sports in the Spring, but the number entering from the 1915 class was unusually large. It was decided to keep the entrance lists open until December 15. It will be the first season in which girls in the freshman class will take part in competition in these sports.

JUMP FOR LIVES AS AUTOMOBILE BURNS

Jumping just in the nick of time to save their lives, Patrick Connell of West Lynn and a friend just escaped being burned when Mr. Connell's big touring car caught fire on Walnut street, Saugus.

They were returning from a trip to Wakefield and as they passed the schoolhouse on Walnut street there was an explosion and the car burst into flames. Connell and his friend leaped to the ground after the engine had been stopped. The auto was destroyed. The loss is about $2,000.

BOLIVIANA IS CAUGHT IN GALES

With part of her superstructure damaged from severe gales encountered on the voyage over and almost a week late, the Furness line freighter Bolivian arrived here to-day from Fowey, England. The big freighter also bore other marks on her decks of the recent gales and hurricanes which have harried shipping in the North Atlantic.

The Bolivian encountered several furious gales at one day and her decks were deluged with water. Mighty seas broke over her bows. The forecastle ports were burst in and the crew's quarters flooded with water. Steam pipes on deck leading to the steam winches were snapped off like pipe stems.

A sounding machine, which was riveted to the steel deck of the ship, was wrenched from its fastenings and swept overboard.

Stopping Light Stops Decay

Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives protection against light. Schlitz is bottled in a brown bottle to protect its purity from the brewery to your glass.

In the Schlitz Brewery, some say, protection against impurity is carried to an absurd extreme. We don't think so.

We have adopted every idea, every invention to attain and preserve purity.

We scald every tub, keg and barrel—every pipe and pump—every time we use it. We wash every bottle four times by machinery. Even the air in which the beer is cooled is filtered.

It is aged for months in glass enameled tanks. It cannot cause biliousness. It will not ferment in your stomach.

If you knew what we know about beer, you would say, "Schlitz—Schlitz in Brown Bottles."

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels.

BOSTON LABOR MEN'S VIEWS ON SENTENCE

The McNamara sentences meet with the approval of Boston's labor leaders.

"Exact Justice." "Murder is murder, no matter by whom committed." "Organized labor has no desire to shield the criminal poor." "They are extremely fortunate in escaping execution."

These are extracts taken from a series of interviews given the AMERICAN by local labor men on the outcome of the case.

In every instance it is held that no lasting harm will be done organized labor by the McNamara confession. Here are the interviews:

"Exact Justice Done."

Arthur M. Huddell, business agent of the Building Trades Department of the Central Labor Union: "Murder is murder, no matter by whom committed. The fact that one of the McNamaras held high office in a trade union neither aggravates nor condones his confessed crime. Exact justice has been done, and a resort to that relic of barbarism, capital punishment, would not have served the interests of organized society as well as the sentences meted out to the McNamara brothers.

"But, even as in a pending murder trial in this city, it has been said we should not arraign the church for the wrongdoings of its individual members, trade unionists as such should not be held accountable for the crimes of any one man. As American citizens we cannot afford to condemn the innocent for the guilty."

"McNamaras Fortunate."

A. J. Howlett, vice-president of the Boston Central Labor Union:

"While a life-long opponent of capital punishment, in view of the horrible crimes confessed to by the McNamara brothers I consider them extremely fortunate in being imprisoned instead of being executed. The wisdom of so dealing with even such self-confessed murderers, however, eventually will be recognized. Organized labor has no desire to shield the criminal poor, even if some guilty man chooses to carry a trade union card. Trade unionism and physical force have nothing in common. The movement is infinitely stronger to-day with the McNamaras in jail, than it was a week ago when we all thought these men innocent of the crimes charged against them."

"Will Benefit Labor."

Dan H. Deegan, secretary Carpenters' District Council of Greater Boston:

"The final outcome of the McNamara case will benefit organized labor. It also should be satisfactory to the entire community. Their execution would not have given society any greater measure of protection. The sickening revelations involved in their confessions constitute an indictment against physical force as a means to adjudicate any question, whether used by workingmen or capitalists. Americans have no use for the McNamara type of villians, neither in nor out of the labor movement."

Joseph J. Dallis, secretary of Boston Typographical Union:

"The labor movement is 10,000 times stronger with men of the McNamara type in jail than if they were free. Organized labor never has, does not now and never will stand for acts of violence."

"Justice Well Served."

Edward Brodera, president Boston Cigarmakers' Union:

"To me it seems to be a sort of compromise sentence, arranged for previous to the confession of the McNamara brothers. But even so, I believe justice will be equally well served, and that no restless spirit be inveigled at the Los Angeles authorities for submitting imprisonment for certain death punishment. The contention that trade unionism will in any way be injured by the action of the McNamaras is so absurd that it is not worth considering. Organized labor, as such, had no hand in the crimes confessed to by the McNamara brothers."

'OH-B-JOYFUL' TYLER CHARGES KIDNAPING

PITTSFIELD, Dec. 6.—Alfred F. Tyler, known as "Oh-B-Joyful" because he gave that phrase to his eldest boy for a first name, has told the police that his daughter Lucy has been kidnaped by her mother. The mother has possession of Lucy, and Chief White says it is better for Lucy to be with her mother. Tyler gained fame a few months ago when it was learned that he fed his family on uncooked food and kept no fire in the house. Later Tyler's wife appeared and secured a divorce. The other woman, mother of the three children, was awarded custody of the little ones, but, until she took Lucy, had made no effort to get possession of them.

BOYLE WINS 15TH VICTORY IN NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 6.—Mayor Patrick J. Boyle won his fifteenth election as Mayor of Newport in a three-cornered fight against Alderman Jeremiah P. Mahoney and ex-Mayor Frederick P. Garrison.

The vote was Boyle, 1,726; Mahoney, 1,294; Garretson, 1,244. Boyle's plurality was his second greatest victory in his political career. He stands for a liberal Sunday.

ANOTHER HEIR FOR ROBERT L. GERRY

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Another heir to a great name and fortune has arrived at the town house of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, No. 816 Fifth avenue. Amid the hushed enthusiasm that marked his advent—the inquiring and congratulations of countless friends—it was learned that the little chap weighs nine pounds and is a fine baby. Even his brother, Elbridge T. Gerry, 2d, who has reached the age of two years, is proud of him.

"SOCIAL REGISTER" BARS MRS. HICHBORN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—For the first time in many years the names of Mrs. Philip S. Hichborn and Horace Wiley, the former clubman of Washington, do not appear in the Social Register of Washington, published for the season of 1911-1912. Repeated inquiries at the home of Mrs. Hichborn and that of Mr. Wiley reveal that both are "out of town." The Social Register is compiled in great part by Miss Isabel Hagner, former secretary of Mrs. Roosevelt.

STATE INQUIRY ON WEYMOUTH'S BLOW-UP

An investigation into the explosion that wrecked the Hunt fireworks plant at Weymouth Landing was begun to-day by the State police. The six persons injured are said to be on the road to recovery. Fred and Russell Hunt, owners of the plant, are unable to account for the explosion. An early report was that they believed it was due to a competitor's enmity, but it is now the opinion that the blow-up was accidental and due to causes within the factory.

NEWSBOYS' COURT JUSTICE IS MASTER

By vote of the School Committee, Paul V. Donovan, who recently was made Chief Justice of the Newsboys' Court of Boston, becomes master of the Eliot Evening School. Having a registration of more than 1,000 men, the Eliot is one of the largest and most important of Boston's evening schools.

2,700 DEER SHOT BY MAINE HUNTERS

BANGOR, Dec. 6.—Game receipts were about sixty deer and two moose, the latter making the total fully 112 for the season. The deer tally passed the 2,700 mark. Massachusetts hunters with deer included Dr. John W. Shaw of Amesbury, Horace H. Adams of North Grafton, Robert Scott, Frank Gray, Newton Ellis and C. H. Martin of Boston.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

FLORENCE LEWIS, RADCLIFFE GIRL WHO WROTE PLAY

FLORENCE J. LEWIS.

"The Case of the Joneses," a one act playlet by Miss Florence J. Lewis, a Radcliffe girl, will be the first vaudeville sketch written by a student at the college which has ever been staged. The initial production of this playlet will be given New Year's night.

Miss Lewis entered Radcliffe as a special student in order that she might study dramatic construction. She intends to dramatize one of her recent books, "Climbing Up to Nature." She was one of founders of the Forty-Seven Club at Radcliffe, an organization composed exclusively of students who have taken a course in drama.

Miss Lewis is to assist in the choice of the actors for her play, and will go to New York soon for that purpose.

HARVARD MEN PLAY "DOUBTING THOMAS"

The fifteenth annual theatrical production of the Deutscher Verein of Harvard University took place in Jordan Hall when the club presented with great success "Der Unglaubige Thomas" ("The Doubting Thomas"), a farce comedy in three acts, by Carl Laufs and Wilhelm Jacoby. The play is filled with clever dialogue and amusing situations and moves swiftly and easily.

Short Lashes Detract From Natural Beauty

The long fringe of silken, curly eyelashes lends a subtle charm and attractiveness to expressive eyes, and if the lashes are short and thin they should be gently brushed each day, then pyroxin applied to the lash roots, possibly result from its use. Care should be taken, however, not to get any where no hair is wanted.

It is Criminal to Neglect the Skin and Hair

THINK of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles — mental because of disfiguration, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. 4D, Boston, will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on skin and scalp treatment.

The Famous Potash and Perlmutter Stories by Montague Glass Are Now a Feature of the Sunday AMERICAN. Don't Miss the first of series of "Abe" and "Mawruss" in Sunday's AMERICAN.

ALFONSO'S AUNT APPEALS TO AMERICA

Infanta Eulalia Declares She Has Been Grievously Wronged by Spanish Ruler.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—"I am waiting here for my punishment to come. I have sent a telegram to Premier Canalejas asking that, whatever punishment the King, my nephew, may decree for me, it may be made known quickly so that I may go away.

"I am anxious to leave Paris, to go away into the mountains of Switzerland, that I love, where I may be alone and work. But I feel that I cannot leave until I know what punishment is to be dealt out to me."

In these words the Infanta Eulalia described her position since she dared disobey her nephew, King Alfonso, openly defying him by publishing her book, "The Thread of My Life," under the pseudonym of the Countess of Avila.

"I wish my attitude to be correctly presented to the American people. Some day I hope to return to America, for I have often said that I am by nature and disposition American.

"The people of America have always been kind to me. They have always treated me justly in spite of untrue rumors my enemies in the Spanish Court have persistently spread about me, maligning my character and making me appear entirely different from what I am.

Like None of My People.

"I am like none of my people. I never have been. In appearance, as well as in spirit, I am different from any of my ancestors or relatives. They are dark in appearance. I am fair, with light hair and blue eyes. They are indirect in their thought, lacking in frankness and sincerity, caring for splendor and show, while I am as direct as an Anglo-Saxon and have hated insincerity and despised the life of the court since I was a little girl.

The Infanta Eulalia, aunt of King Alfonso of Spain.

"Where my nature comes from I do not know, but it is different from theirs.

"For that reason I have always been made to suffer. Sometimes I have been punished directly, sometimes through my son—my eldest son, who is now in Morocco—whom I love more than anything else in life.

"When I married an annual sum of money was granted to me as daughter of the King. When I separated from my husband eleven years ago this allowance, under the Code Napoleon, was paid to him. I was represented as in the wrong.

"My husband lives to-day with another woman in a house in Paris within a few yards of where I am living. We cannot be divorced, because there is no divorce in Spain. But, because of my enemies, I was left penniless while this husband received my money.

Have Been Misrepresented.

"When I came to Paris it was represented that I chose this city because I was frivolous and wished to share in its gayeties. My life here is, and has always been, simple in the extreme. I have never been in the famous restaurants or show places, such as most women who live here go to in order to be noticed.

"These things I tell you to show you how persistently I have been misrepresented. My day is devoted to reading and writing and to simple exercise, such as bicycling in the Bois de Boulogne. I retire early, never later than 10 o'clock. I rise early. I see few friends.

"Many of my friends are Americans, because I find their companionship congenial. I admire the sincerity of American women. I have the highest respect for American men, because they believe in work. In Europe it is only the man who doesn't work who is respected.

Believes She Is Doing Good.

"Sometimes people say to me: 'Americans are rough,' but I answer: 'I do not care if they are rough. Their hearts are true and loyal.

"I am rough myself, for I hate this pretended cultivation of court life. My palace in Spain is shut. It has been shut many years. If I lived there two men with trumpets would be always at the door. I should never be alone. I never think my own thoughts. I could never say what was in my mind for fear that it would be taken back to the royal palace, distorted by those who wished to make trouble.

"When I wrote my book I sincerely believed I was doing good. It contains no politics. It does not deal with any personalities. It is merely the reflections that have come to me in my life, the putting of experience into maxims that might be helpful to others. It is meant to be moral and helpful, not harmful. But here I have been condemned by my own nephew who has never seen the book, who orders me not to publish it.

"I received the telegram from him and sent my reply just as they were originally given, but now, through the influence of the King and court, it is even said that these telegrams were not as reported, that the King didn't order me not to publish my book until he had given his permission. Also the 'official' version of my telegram to the King is in part suppressed. But these dispatches read just as they were originally presented in the press.

"I don't know what punishment is to be meted out to me, but I will bear it without a murmur. I suppose my allowance will be cut off. Also, I presume, the Spanish court will force Rome to excommunicate me, because, in two mild paragraphs, I have said I favor divorce under certain conditions.

Worried About Her Son.

"Whatever they do to me, they will be unable to oppress or depress me. I feel I have done right. I wish only the liberty to work and live my life away from courts, trying to do the best I can. They can't prevent me from doing that.

"Therefore they cannot frighten me. They cannot saddden me, although I suppose my sisters and other relatives will be forced against me and not allowed to say anything more to do with me.

"Suppose the King visits his anger against you upon your son in Morocco? I inquired.

"Oh, don't say that!" said the Infanta, her hands clasped as if in entreaty. Then it came into her eyes and she let them fall, unheeded upon her clenched hands.

"No human being, no king, could punish an innocent boy because his mother had written a harmless little book. No; that would be unheard of, monstrous. My son is dearer to me than my life. He was in disfavor because he married a Protestant.

"When I went to Spain two years ago they would not let him come with me. I thought then how sad it was that I could be there without my son at my side. But now he is with the Spanish army. He is serving his country in Morocco. He is happy with his wife and child, my little grandson.

"Only the other day I had a letter from my son's wife, saying she hoped I would have much success with my book."

JOB HARRIMAN LOSES BY 35,000

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—George Alexander, "Good Government" candidate, was re-elected Mayor over Job Harriman, the Socialist candidate, by a majority estimated at 35,000. The prohibition ordinance was defeated in yesterday's election by a 2 to 1 vote. Apparently the entire citizens' ticket was swept into office by the landslide.

Frederick T. Wheeler, T. W. Williams and Frank E. Wolfe, Socialist candidates for the City Council, are also up in the count, but it is not thought they will be able to overcome the lead of the men on the citizens' ticket.

Three Socialist candidates for the Board of Education are also running ahead of their ticket, and there is some doubt of the final result.

The heavy vote cast, far beyond any estimates, has put a burden on the Election Board, and the complete count is not expected until to-night. The total vote cast was between 135,000 and 140,000, as against 44,000 in the primary election, in which the Socialist ticket gained a victory.

More Women Than Men.

For the first time in the history of California, women participated as voters and according to careful estimates their ballots exceeded the number of men who voted by many thousands. From the opening of the polls until closing time the women showed their interest in clear fairs and justified the claims of the most ardent advocates of equal suffrage by swarming to the voting booths.

Throughout the day long lines of voters, with women in predominance, could be seen at the polls in every precinct. The new voters displayed unexpected interest and knowledge of the process of voting.

That the women contributed largely to the election of Alexander is admitted by political leaders. Undoubtedly the collapse of the McNamara defence, in which Harriman was an associate counsel, and the confession of guilt by the dynamiters when they changed their pleas to guilty, had a great effect on the campaign.

"Persons who would not vote for Alexander simply stayed away from the polls," said Chairman S. C. Graham of the Good Government forces. The victorious ticket consists of Mayor Alexander and nine Councilmen, including bankers, lawyers, merchants and realty brokers.

Baby Carriages at Polls.

On the defeated Socialist ticket, besides Harriman, a lawyer for the McNamaras, there were a negro junk dealer, a former editor of a morning newspaper, two iron workers and several labor leaders.

Scratching of Joseph A. Scott, candidate for reelection to the School Board, was apparent. He also was one of the attorneys for the McNamaras.

"The peace and quiet army" of 1,000 officers, detailed to Chief of Police Seiberlin and Sheriff Hamel had little to do to maintain order. For the peace and serenity that prevailed leaders of both sides thanked the women, thousands of whom crowded about the polling booths to vote for the first time.

The women were treated with the greatest gallantry. Many mothers went to the polls pushing baby carriages and often father took care of baby while mother voted. In one precinct a puzzled woman voted in favor of the prohibition ordinance, though she was opposed to it. When she learned what she had done she rushed back to the booth and declared:

Cooking Before Voting.

"I want to change my vote."

She was told it was impossible.

"O! but it must be changed," she exclaimed, and the election officers patiently explained that it was against the law.

Everywhere the women were responsible for unusual election day features. In Precinct 12, which includes "Lafayette Park," a busy housewife, her apron still on, rushed into one of the two voting booths.

"Give me a ballot. I want to vote!" she announced.

"But, madam, you must take your place in line," an election official said, as she glanced at the long line and refused.

"I left a batch of bread in the oven and I wouldn't have it burn for either Harriman or Alexander," and she went back home.

Mlle. Kerville, Sister of Deslys

One of Mlle. Kerville's striking head-dresses is a Juliet cap of pearls.

Sister of Gaby Deslys Charms the Theatre Public of Paris.

PARIS, Dec. 6.—One of the most beautiful women in the world is now generally acknowledged to be the little French beauty, Mlle. Kerville, sister of the fascinating Gaby Deslys, whose poems as well as her beauty have brought her fame all over the world.

Mlle. Kerville has been appearing at the Olympia in Paris and her marvelous frocks and gorgeous jewels, likewise her beauty, have caused an end of a ripple.

One of the most conspicuous outfits is a Juliet cap of pearls with an immense aigrey plume almost completely covering her head and fastened a little to the left side with a large buckle of pearls. With the hat—or cap—perhaps it might be safer to say head dress, she wears a long rope of pearls and a gown of Irish lace combined with white chiffon.

She's rather pretty with dark hair. Her teeth, which match her pearls, she shows constantly, for like Gaby, she's a charming smiler. Her complexion is perfect and her face as smooth and round as a child's and her eyes as wide.

POLICE HEAR OF BOMB PLOT

There was excitement in the negro colony in Roxbury when it became known that Bishop William H. Plummer, pastor of the Church of God and Saints of Christ, on Woolsey street, had received a telephone message from police headquarters inquiring in regard to a bomb reported to have been found on the church property early to-day.

A reporter found Bishop Plummer in conference with several members of the church in a Woolsey street store.

"I knew nothing about the supposed bomb until the police called me on the telephone," said Bishop Plummer. "It is all a mystery to us. I talked with members of the church living nearby and none of them knew anything about it.

"I know of no reason why anyone should want to blow up the church. We have about 150 members and perfect harmony reigns. We have no enemies."

At police headquarters it was said that a report had been received that a bomb was found in the church at daybreak and that it had been taken away by firemen. The police said they had learned no more than this.

A reporter was informed at the Eustis street fire station, the nearest fire house to Woodbury street, that nothing had been heard there of a bomb. The police of station 16, which includes Woodbury street, also denied knowledge of the supposed bomb.

KNEISEL QUARTET IS WELL RECEIVED

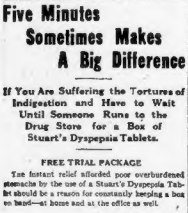
The Kneisel Quartette, with Harold Bauer, the pianist, as the assisting artist, gave a second concert in Hosmer Hall, Lowell, last night. The program was up to their usual high standard in the playing, and Mr. Bauer was more than equal to the exigencies of the occasion. The Kneisel players rendered the Mozart Quartet in C major excellently. Particularly effective was the playing of the Saint-Saens sonata in C minor for piano and 'cello, opus 32. Brahms' quintet in G minor, piano and strings, opus 34, was magnificently performed. The audience applauded each performance.

Five Minutes Sometimes Makes A Big Difference

If You Are Suffering the Tortures of Indigestion and Have to Wait Until Someone Runs to the Drug Store for a Box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

FREE TRIAL PACKAGE

The instant relief afforded poor overburdened stomachs by the use of a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet should be a reason for constantly keeping a box on hand—at home and at the office as well.



The Stomach Welcomes Quick Relief.

A Stuart's Tablet not only aids digestion but it actually does the digesting itself. In other words it furnishes exactly the same elements for the digestion of food as the natural juices of the stomach. The stomach, therefore, is not called upon to do any of the work except to churn the juices furnished by the tablet and then push the digested food along into the intestines where it will be still further digested and the strength taken up by the blood to be carried to the muscles and nerves of the body.

So by taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after a meal you give the stomach the rest it needs in which to mend itself and grow well again. And you absolutely prevent the souring of any food, the formation of any poisonous gases, belching, foul breath or constipation.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have done more for humanity and have caused more rejoicing than any other one agency that can be named.

Every druggist every where sells and personally recommends Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. The price is 50 cents per box. If you first wish to try them a sample package will be sent you free if you write to F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

SUES WOMAN TO RECOVER FUNDS

Young men who believe that their feminine friends or relatives can save their money for them better than they can themselves will be interested in the suit brought by Henry Cavicchi of Everett against Amarilide Cavicchi of Melrose to get back money he says he gave her to save for him.

According to Henry, she not only saved the money, but bought real estate with it and now refuses to give him either money or the real estate. Henry thinks that this is carrying saving too far, so far as he cares.

Henry has brought suit in the Middlesex Superior Civil Court at East Cambridge. He declares that a few years ago, he took all his savings, $5,000, gave it to Amarilide Cavicchi, and told her to save it for him, after taking out his board and lodging cost from week to week.

Henry further says that she bought land with his money without his consent and that now he wants his savings. He says there is $3,000 still due him, after allowing for all board and lodging cost. He asks that the money due him be determined by the court and that the real estate bought by the defendant be sold so that he may get back what is coming to him.

TREE CLIMBERS TO ACCEPT $2.50 A DAY

By a unanimous vote the Public Grounds Department Employes' Union agreed to accept the $2.50 a day wage for tree climbers which was offered by the city officials at the conference of heads of departments and the Boston Central Labor Union special committee last week. The men have been receiving $2.25 a day, whereas the men doing the same work in State departments and private concerns receive much larger pay.

Three Things Every Woman Should Know

(Annie Rix in the Graphic.)

"If you want long, wavy and lustrous hair, use a dry sham poo, for soap and water fades the hair and makes it brittle. Just mix four ounces of therox with four ounces of cornmeal, or with four ounces of powdered orris root, sprinkle a tablespoonful of this mixture on the head; then brush thoroughly through the hair.

"A lovely, soft and youthful complexion can be brought about by applying a solution made by dissolving a small original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel. Make the solution yourself and gently rub into the face, neck and arms night and morning.

"For eczema, and other skin diseases, there is nothing better than Mother's Salve. It heals old sores, cuts, burns and scalds, and the world never saw its equal as a cure for coughs, colds and catarrh."

Four Boston Women Who Will Exhibit at the Park Riding School Horse Show

At the left is Miss Nora Saltonstall. The portrait in the circle is that of Miss Dorothy Mandell. Next is Miss Dorothy Forbes, and at the right is Mrs. Hugh Bancroft.

The fair equestriennes of Boston have made special preparations to participate in Boston's horse show which starts this evening at the Park Riding School. Femininity is allotter with eagerness to have a try for the coveted blue ribbons.

Young adepts in riding and driving who will be among the exhibitors and who are determined to gather some of the laurels are Miss Dorothy Forbes, Miss Dorothy Mandell, Miss Helen and Miss Esther Foss, Miss Nora Saltonstall and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft.

Other Boston exhibitors are Miss Margaret Bennett, Mrs. Paul Hunt, Miss Frances Webster, Miss Mabel Webster, Miss Helen Lothrop, Miss Frances Bradley, Miss Elizabeth Goulding, Miss Beatrice Smith, Miss June Peters, Miss Rose Churchill, Miss Phyllis Sears, Miss Amy Peabody, Miss Helene Peters, Miss Anna and Miss Mazie Agassiz and Miss Harriet Bailey.

Lack of capacity has barred New Yorkers from the competition, but the local enthusiasts will have their hands full in beating the stables from other parts of New England—notably those of Alfred G. Vanderbilt of Oakland Farm, Newport, and H. L. Pierce of Londonderry.

The Vanderbilt string arrived at the South Station yesterday and came over the road to the riding school in fine shape. They have been resting and getting into condition since the National Horse Show in New York. Among the best-known in the string are Sir James, Queen Mab, Queen Favor, Hamlet and Hertes. Mr. Vanderbilt, who is president of the National Horse Show, was the fifth largest money winner in the big national show.

Mr. Pierce's string, after having a good rest in the country, reached Boston on Saturday night and since has been given the finishing touches in the school ring and along the nearby park roads. The stable is in prime condition for a big killing. Probably no horse at the show will attract more attention than Mr. Pierce's big chestnut gelding, Panama, which carried off the heavyweight saddle championship two weeks ago in New York, defeating the best in this country and those from abroad.

The Pierce string has been remodeled, strengthened and is expected to cut a wide swath. Among the stars in the stable now here are Thomas Cromwell and Lemmon Pierce, Warwick Queen and Warwick Princess, Real Thing and Sunshine.

Against these powerful stables of national reputation will be pitted the best in horse flesh from Boston and its suburbs. The quality of horses owned and shown in Boston has increased so tremendously in recent years that it is difficult to see how the future holds much in store. The winners of the former big Boston horse shows would not have a chance in the ring with the champions of to-day.

One of the strongest of the local stables is that of J. Sumner Draper of Milton, who ranked thirteenth in the list of money winners at the National Horse Show. Mr. Draper will have his full stable of ribbon winners in the competitions this week. In New York he won one first, six seconds, two thirds and once was highly commended.

NEWSBOYS SEE MUTT AND JEFF

After being in town about a month "Mutt-Jeff" have met another big delegation of Boston newsboys face to face. Great was the meeting thereof.

It was at the Globe Theatre, of course, where Bud Fisher's musical comedy, "Mutt and Jeff," has taken apparently permanent possession. Three hundred "newsies," under the marshalship of the smiling "Happy" of the AMERICAN'S circulation department, occupied the balcony.

Before the curtain went up word was passed around on the stage that the newsboys were in the house. Roger Gray (Mutt), stooped down and said to Shorty DeWitt (Little Jeff):

"Say, you, Jeff, we're gonna do the best work of our lives to-night. The newsboys are out front. They are the chaps who sell us out every day. If it wasn't for the newsboys we wouldn't get any circulation and circulation is the price of existence, or words to that effect. Get me?"

"I gotcha, I gotcha, Mutt," replied Little Jeff earnestly.

Dainty Lillian Goldsmith as Jessie May scored mightily with her singing and dancing, especially the latter, for Miss Lillian is as light on her feet as a young feather. Other members of the cast were also greatly appreciated.

After the show Clint Wilson, manager of the company, took some of the older newsboys around on the stage and introduced them to "Mutt-Jeff" and other members of the cast.

"Happy" summed up the newsboy opinion by saying to Mutt and Jeff:

"You two make a crackerjack team and the show is a corker."

"Well, say, Mutt, "it's not for us to dispute you, is it, Jeff?"

Jeff—"No, no indeed."

ITALY INVADING ARAB COUNTRY

TRIPOLI, Dec. 6.—General Canera has issued orders to make the Oasis of Aizara, the key to the country about the city of Tripoli, the base of operations for the penetration of the desert country. The advance from Aizara into the southern hills has been delayed.

A large section of the 20,000 Italian troops, together with a considerable force of artillery and all the Krupp guns captured from the Turks, will be left at Aizara. Bersaglieri will form the bulk of the expeditionary forces which will penetrate the southern hills. Field guns will be taken along and hundreds of camels are being gathered for the transportation of food and water.

Medicated Gin Splendid for Kidneys and Bladder

When good pure gin is properly mixed with certain other ingredients and taken in small doses, it makes a splendid remedy for weak, deranged kidneys or bladder. Simply get six ounces best gin and add to it one-half ounce of Murax Compound and one-half ounce fluid extract Buchu. Mix well and take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. This quickly stops kidney or bladder misery and prevents the most serious forms of kidney disease, such a Bright's disease, chronic rheumatism or renal diabetes, if taken in time.

"THAIS" OPERA BILL TO-NIGHT

The long promised production of "Thais" will take place at the Boston Opera House to-night. The title role will be taken by Zina Brozia, the beautiful French woman who was brought from the Paris Opera to create this part at the Boston Opera.

The monk Athanael will be sung by Jean Ridder, a distinguished French baritone, who is expected to create great enthusiasm by his fine acting and magnificent voice. Edmond Clement, the tenor, will sing the part of Nicias, and a capable cast will support these artists.

The Boston Opera production is said to be the most elaborate ever staged of this opera. Andre Caplet will conduct.

"Thais" was composed in 1894, by Massenet, upon a libretto founded upon the romance of Anatole France. The story tells how Thais, a courtezan of Alexandria, is converted to Christianity by a monk who falls a victim to her personal charms when she has forsworn the world and the flesh.

GOVERNORS IN EAST TO BOOM THE WEST

November 27 a party of eight Western Governors and almost 100 prominent public men of the West left St. Paul on one of the most luxurious trains ever equipped. They invade the East on a new mission—they ask no votes, no offices, no favors. They extend the broad spirit of Western hospitality to the East and the Westerners. They say, "come and see that our land is good." They not only want the East to come and see, but have brought with them an astonishing collection of agricultural and mineral products of the States which they honorably represent as Governors.

All are familiar with the county fair movement which has been developed so highly in the East. These fairs have developed into "national corn expositions," "national apple shows," etc. They have in the middle and far West also resulted in huge land expositions, such as the one held recently in Madison Square Garden, New York city, in the big Chicago land show, and the Northwestern land products show to be held in St. Paul in the middle of December. These shows have great value, but are limited largely to people within a radius of 500 miles.

Great Northern Exhibit.

The Western Governors' Special is a veritable land show on wheels. Take for example the car owned by the Great Northern Railway Company, and equipped by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce. This car was sent all the way from St. Paul to San Francisco and has been most beautifully dressed and equipped with the various agricultural and mineral products from one of the most favored commonwealths of the world. While this car is Uncle Sam's domain, representing the Panama Pacific International Exposition, which will be held in San Francisco, when the great Panama canal, built by American skill and money, is open to the world's commerce, while sailing the East bound Pacific miles nearer to the West.

Moving further north the Great Northern car, one finds Washington's and Montana's exhibits, both of which are very equally divided between both these Northwestern States. Here are seen fruits and apples of Wenatchee, Columbia River salmon, hard wheat, apples and other grains which won first prizes in competition with all the other states of the Union at the New York Land Show.

J. E. Barnes, representing Governor Hay of Washington, and E. L. Norris, the genial Governor of Montana, with a number of prominent business men from our newest agricultural State, show the people what the Northwest really is. Washington has countless opportunities for the man with a few thousand dollars to engage in profitable diversified fruit raising, and Montana has 18,000,000 acres of free government land left for the homeseeker.

Idaho-Oregon Car.

Oregon has 20,000,000 acres of free land with lots of room for the average farmer, who wants to raise grain, grasses, vegetables, hogs, cattle, chickens. The big potatoes of Idaho and the big red apples, too, are well represented in this car, which is a joint Idaho-Oregon car, and will have Governor West of Oregon, Governor Hawley of Idaho, and a party of business men from those States. Minnesota and the Dakotas have a car in which the products of Minnesota, the great dairy State—North and South Dakota, the big alfalfa, cattle and wheat raising States, are well represented.

Governor Eberhart of Minnesota, John Burke, the Democratic Governor of Republican North Dakota, and Governor Vessey of South Dakota, are with this car, ready and willing to welcome the Eastern farmer and business man to show them the "Back to the Farm" possibilities of this section of the great Northwest. The Colorado-Wyoming car, costing $7,000 special at Chicago, and was accompanied by Lieutenant-Governor Fitzgerald of Colorado and Governor Carey of Wyoming. This car will show the products of both these great Western States.

The Great Northern Railway during the last six months has had a number of moving picture films taken of irrigation and fruit raising scenes in the great Northwest, pictures were taken of the Governors' train arriving and departing from the Twin Cities. These pictures will be shown each city in one of the most prominent theatres two days before the train arrives and also on the day the train stops in the city. These films naturally picture the Governors, the train and the Northwest. The exhibit of the fruit and grain will be shown more than one could see in even a long ride through the West. It is quite educational and are of great historical value.

Million-Dollar Train.

All of the cars belong to the Great Northern Railway and will be attached to the Wyoming-Colorado car, which is a Burlington Route car.

The train consists of one dynamo baggage car, equipped with photographic dark room; one dining car, two standard sleeping cars; two, compartment observation cars, which will be occupied by the Governors; one California exhibition car; one Oregon-Idaho exhibition car; one Washington-Montana exhibition car, and one Minnesota-Dakota exhibition car, in which both North and South Dakota are represented, and one Wyoming-Colorado exhibition car.

The tour will be not only a friendly visit, it will convey most forcibly to all visitors who see the cars a clear idea of the splendid resources of the West and the great opportunities for men of brain and brawn to make prosperous homes for themselves and their families in this new country.

The Great Northern Railway's exhibit cars are proving no less an attraction to the public than the Western Governors on their invasion of the East. "And why should they?" as one of the Governors expressed it, "for those marvelous products of the Northwestern States are ample evidence corroborating all our flow of oratory concerning the wonderful fertility of the soil in our country."

Harvest From the West.

So important do the Governors regard the grains, fruits and vegetables on exhibition in the five exhibition cars that wherever the Governors' special stops one of the Governors is delegated to step upon the observation platform and announce to the throng that the people are especially invited to board the train and view exhibits of the amazing riches of a Northwestern harvest.

Beginning in Chicago where the train stopped half a day, the crowds were large. Then again in Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Detroit, Michigan, there was the same stream of people through the exhibit cars. West of Pittsburg probably the largest crowd passed through the exhibition cars in Toledo, Ohio.

An average of 3,000 people are viewing daily the products which are presented from Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, California, Wyoming and Colorado.

The Governors along the line of the train are unanimous in the admission that the exhibition cars are doing quite as much to win the East for the West as their orators, of oratorical fame, are doing a great deal. For there certainly are some word painters in the forensic artillery lineup.

Visit Syracuse University.

Syracuse and Utica each entertained the western Governors yesterday. They were breakfasted at the Onondaga Hotel by the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce, visited the university, and were welcomed by Chancellor Day, and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon reached Utica, and were met by a delegation from the Board of Trade. Last night the Governors were guests at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce. An informal lunch at Albany to-day will be the last general functions until the banquet in Baltimore Friday night. The Governors will be the guests of President Taft at the White House Thursday evening, the invitations being limited exclusively to the executive and the chief representatives of the Governors of California and Washington.

There is prolonged regret from various members of the party that the dining-room at William Randolph Hearst's residence will not seat the seventy-five, more or less, visitors from the West who will be in New York on Sunday. Governor Brady has been put to the disagreeable task of selecting thirty of the party for the lunch feast at Mr. Hearst's, and says it is a job that would cut the entire diplomatic force to perform successfully. He is wrestling with the problem to-day.

VOTE BRIBERY CASE IS READY

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 6.—Sufficient evidence has been secured by State police officers and special investigators to present the entire case of corruption in the State election and vote buying to the Bristol County Grand Jury. It was stated here to-day that there was evidence upon which the State officers hope to warrant the return of indictments against at least five prominent men of New Bedford.

This evidence has been secured from what the State police learned from the testimony of vote buying as presented at an inquest by Judge Milliken in 1909, from what they have learned during their probe of the past two weeks and from what the Citizens' Committee and residents have told the State officers. No date has yet been set as to when this evidence shall be presented to the grand jury.

State Officers Frederick F. Flynn and Joseph V. Daly, who spent yesterday in watching the voting in the city election, looked up witnesses to-day who gave testimony in the inquest of 1909. Officer Flynn said:

"If the conscientious people of New Bedford want a clean-up and will come forward to the State police with evidence, as many of them have, we are here ready to make the clean-up.

Following a conference yesterday with Governor Foss, David I. Walsh returned to-day, bringing a transcript of the testimony taken at the probe in 1909. He held affairs over with the State police and members of the special investigating committee.

Mayor Charles S. Ashley, who was reelected mayor for the fifteenth time on yesterday's election, ridiculed the idea that there is corruption in elections here. He said to-day:

"In presence of detectives, spies, reporters and investigators was enough to produce an influence that would end in my overthrow. I repeat that there did not exist and restraining corruption that had not being, these elements were to accomplish a political upheaval. It is to be hoped that the visitors who seem out to have suspected that they were being duped by local villainy, now see how well I stood as it really is, a free, independent, enterprising, prosperous, progressive and unbribed community, not to be coerced or driven and property resentful of slander and abuse.

"The result of the election is an emphatic refutation of the manifold charges that have been advertised broadcast throughout the Commonwealth. Let us now hope that the tongue of the defamer will be silenced."

Rev. Frank E. Ransedell, pastor of the North Congregational Church, who is chairman of the Citizens' committee which instituted the vote-buying inquest two years ago, said:

"Mayor Ashley may consider the election as a vindication, but it is not. He has been re-elected in the result of the accumulated corruption that has gone through years. The re-election of Mayor Ashley was expected, but because he has been elected it does not follow that the work of purifying New Bedford will stop, and I give every confidence that the officers of the State police, who are determined to clean up the town, will find that the vote-buying crooks going and coming in the full glare of publicity and bring members of the electorate to the bar of justice."

TELL OF FIGHT AT THE STADIUM

It has just become known that the Harvard University authorities have been investigating stories which have come to their ears regarding the tussle which followed the annual Thanksgiving Day battle between Battery A and the First Corps Cadets in the Harvard Stadium.

Several letters, it is said, were sent to the Harvard authorities asserting that the contest ended in a fight and that the scenes following the game were disgraceful.

Members of both teams come from the best families in Boston and they were greatly surprised when they heard that the short tussle for the possession of the ball at the end of the game had been exaggerated into some people to what was termed a fight.

The game ended with a tie score and according to several players both teams were anxious to secure the ball as a trophy. As was natural, a tussle followed.

The authorities are still conducting their investigations and if they find the stories which reached their ears to be correct, it is said they will not allow the two military organizations to again use the Stadium for their annual game.

Members of both the Battery A and First Corps teams say that the two captains tossed a coin before the game began to see which team should own the ball in case of a tie contest. The players, however, were not aware of this and when the whistle announced the end of the game, both sides were after the ball with a rush.

Herman L. Dillingham, the old Dartmouth star, a member of B Company, and coach for the Cadets' team, said:

"I am responsible for the whole affair and I assure you that it was done in the best of spirit and good nature. When the whistle blew at the close of the game Captain Hasding, centre for Battery A, had the ball and started to walk off the field with it. The thought came to me that we needed that ball so I just walked up behind him and grabbed it from under his arm.

"He turned quickly and tried to grab the ball from me. The members of the teams naturally surrounded us and a scramble ensued. Everything was done in the best of spirit and the men in the scramble laughed and joked with each other.

"Any talk about a fight after the game or any unfriendly feeling is silly. I was in the centre of the scramble, did not receive anything like the appearance of a blow and did not see any struck."

BOSTON AND BANGOR TRAIN IS DERAILED

BANGOR, Dec. 6.—The Pullman and two-day coaches of train No. 25, bound from Boston, jumped a frog 600 yards west of Northern Maine Junction, six miles west of this city, to-day. The fifty passengers were brought to Bangor in the baggage car. No one was injured and there was no damage to rolling stock. The derailed cars bumping along on the ties for thirty feet and remaining upright. The cars were soon replaced on the rails and traffic was not delayed.

BIG KANSAS CITY FIRE.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 6.—A $500,000 fire in the West Bottoms wholesale district early to-day destroyed the five-story building of the Long Brothers' Wholesale Grocery Company at St. Louis avenue and Santa Fe street, and threatened adjoining buildings.

TAFT RECEIVES REALTY MEN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—One of the largest single delegations at the National Rivers and Harbor Congress, which met today, is that from the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange.

It also is one of the largest bodies of representative business men that ever has taken such a trip. There are seventy-five members in this party, and they arrived in three special cars early in the day.

President Taft gave a reception to all of the members of the delegation this afternoon, while at 6 o'clock the Exchange will give a dinner and reception to the members of the Senate and House from Massachusetts and members attending the convention from Massachusetts.

President Martin, Colonel Peter Cory of Canton, Henry C. Long and several other well known men expressed their views on the question freely. Mr. Long, father of the $9,000,000 Boston Harbor bill, said:

"The development of the inland waterway from South Carolina to New York Harbor will cost no more than a single track railway covering the same distance, and as a regulator of rates on slow moving freight such an outlet for coal and coke will be vastly superior to a competing railroad.

"It will be a people's highway, of the greatest importance to New England and Long Island Sound and the bays leading into it are directly connected with New York Harbor, so that cotton from South Carolina can be delivered to our mills in Providence, New Bedford, Fall River and elsewhere along the south coast of New England as it can be delivered to the South Carolina mills by rail. Coal and coke can come from Pennsylvania and West Virginia at a rate much below the present rate.

"This is important not only in reducing the cost of fuel; it will restore the iron industry to southern New England in much the same way that the Erie Canal is completed, for iron ore can then be laid down cheaper in Long Island Sound ports than it can be laid down in Pittsburg, and with cheap coal can successfully compete with the world in the manufacture of iron.

"It will enable all New Englanders to make greater use of Southern railways in shipping slow freight into the West and Southwest, and enable us to compete successfully with St. Louis and Chicago in those great growing sections.

"In short, even if not one dollar of the proposed appropriations is spent in New England, still New England will be benefited almost, if not quite, as much as in the sections where the real digging is done."

The waterway will be more used by New England shippers than by any other area. The opening of a great inland waterway will be the opening of a great commercial era in southern New England," in this city.

CHICAGO HANDS BLOW TO HIGH LIVING COST

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—An ordinance just passed is declared by by city officials to be an effective blow at the "high cost of living." The ordinance requires retail merchants handling fruits and vegetables to sell these commodities by weight instead of by measure. An ordinary peck measure of potatoes yields 12 pounds, while a weight peck should amount to 15 pounds. Apples by measure yield about 9 pounds, while by weight the customer should receive 12½ pounds. Onions weigh 14½ pounds to the peck, while experiment shows the average peck measure yields only 11½ pounds. A peck of spinach weighs three pounds. It has been found that 1½ pounds of spinach fills the measure.

AVIATOR DEAD, PASSENGER HURT

LONDON, Dec. 6.—Aviator Hubert Oxley was killed while making an aeroplane flight at Filey, Yorkshire, to-day, and a passenger named Wels, who was riding with him, was fatally injured. The machine crashed to earth in the presence of a terrified crowd of spectators. Oxley's body was badly mangled, being ejected by the heavy motor. Wels was picked up unconscious, and doctors who examined him said he could not live.

COLTS WILL MAKE TRIP AROUND WORLD

PROVIDENCE, Dec. 6.—Judge Le Baron B. Colt of the Federal Court will soon make a trip around the world. He will be accompanied by his brother, Colonel Samuel R. Colt. They will start some time in February and be gone nearly a year. Judge Colt has just returned from his Summer home in Ireland and is occupying his home in this city.

SCHOOLS TWO-THIRDS FOREIGN

There are 91,843 pupils in the public schools of Boston and of these 58,310 are children of foreign-born fathers, while 33,533 are of the offspring of fathers born in this country.

The parochial schools of the city are attended by 41,069 pupils, of whom nearly 7,000 are children of foreign born fathers.

The figures are a result of an investigation by the United States Immigration Bureau of the races of pupils in schools. The material was gathered by Roland P. Falkner, who was the special agent in charge of the investigation.

According to the report, "there are 11,045 over age or retarded pupils in the school population, an average of 14.7 per cent. The percentage of retarded pupils increases rapidly until the sixth grade is reached, after which it diminishes.

"Designating the race of pupils by that of father, it appears that 26.5 per cent. of the children had native-born fathers and that 24.9 of these were white. The aggregate of native-born rises a little below 'white.' Among the foreign born the most numerous race is the Irish, with 16.5 pupils per cent. Adding Canadian, English and Scotch, about 30 per cent. of the foreign-born are of English-speaking antecedents. Among forces races with no English antecedents the Russian Jews with 12.4 per cent., are most numerous, followed by the Italians with 3.1 per cent.

There are a number of other races included in the census, six of them in the main, tables being classed as of the nation whose sovereignty their country acknowledges. Among these are 183 Armenians, 99 Bohemians and Moravians, 26 Belgian Finns, 12 Croatians, 13 Cubans, 8 Dalmatians, 140 Dutch, 1 Filipino, 94 Finns, 2 Icelanders, 37 Greeks, 178 Roumanian Jews, 2 Hindoos, 12 Japanese, 61 Mexicans, 2 Mexicans, 20 Montenegrins, 2 Lithuanians, 29 Scotch-Irish, 1 Servian, 83 Slovaks, 4 Soudanese, 11 Spaniards, 54 Spanish-Americans, 8 Turks, 55 Welsh and 2 Jews of European or Asiatic extraction.

WALSH AFTER COULON MATCH

By JACK CONWAY.

Jimmy Walsh, the local bantamweight pride, is soon going to New York, where he will start after a match with Johnny Coulon. Jimmy hasn't done a great deal of work for several months, but says that he is as good as ever. When Walsh starts active work, boxing fans are sure to witness some boxing which is boxing. He is one of the most skillful men that ever pulled on a glove.

Walsh's weight is the only thing which prevents him from being universally recognized as the bantamweight champion. Walsh claims that the proper bantam limit is 118 pounds, while Coulon says that the weight should be 116 pounds. The latter weight is recognized by the majority of the experts in this country, while the European experts hold that 118 is the bantam limit.

Coulon is now taking on weight and is likely to weigh all of 118 pounds in a year. But even at the present Coulon is stronger at 118, but he can make as low as 116 and still be able to put up a great battle.

Coulon is a wonderful boxer and can hit. He has not done a great deal of boxing for six months, but is reported as being in the best of condition. A [illegible] Walsh and Coulon at 118 pounds would be one worth going several miles to see. In discussing his right to the bantamweight championship, Walsh said:

"I am the only real bantamweight champion and have held the title for the past seven years. A young man from Chicago [illegible] to [illegible] but there is nothing [illegible] record to base such a claim on. [illegible] part of Coulon's claim is that he set himself up as bantam champion after I had been awarded the title. I became the champion back in the days when Nevada was very much on the pugilistic map.

"I was booked to meet Frankie Neil, who won the title from Harry Forbes, at Tonopah, Nevada, for the bantamweight championship and a purse of $5,000. Two weeks before the date set for the contest Neil's father sent word that his boy could not make the weight and as a result I was awarded the title by the boxing experts.

"In my day I have beaten such men as Monte Attell, Jimmy Carroll, [illegible] Young Britt, Jimmy Kelly, Eddie Moore, Fred [illegible] the [illegible] champion and Digger Stanley, the English title holder. Therefore I believe that it is absurd to deny that I am not the real champion.

"Coulon was given an opportunity to meet me at the Jeffries Athletic Club several years ago, but side-stepped the match by asking for 115 pounds ringside. This the club would not stand for. I am willing to meet Coulon any time, any place and under any rules provided that he will agree to 118 pounds."

With the Boxers

A large sized crowd of fight fans are sure to be on hand when the curtain is rung up at the American A. C. to-morrow night. Arrangements have been made to accommodate about 1,000 people. The card which is offered the hungry fans is a crackerjack. George Alger of Cambridge and Freddy Duffy of Jamaica Plain should put up a rugged mill in the final bout of the evening. Alger possesses a tantalizing left jab and rules a favorite. Young Jaret and Young Clancy should also furnish some fireworks. Both of these bouts are eight-round affairs. Teddy Murphy and Chicken Roskin will clash in one of the prelims, series of six rounds. There will be another six-round [illegible] between Mickey Brown and Eddy Nadeau. The curtain raiser will be a three-round affair between Spider Murphy and Young Benny Yanger.

Frank Klaus and Jack Dillon should put up a sensational battle at Pittsburg to-night. Both men are out to annex the middleweight championship and a victory means a great deal.

There will be a double windup at Webster to-night. Kid Scaler will swap wallops with Biz Mackey, while M. Lemoine will try and slip a [illegible] over on Kid Williams.

A noise which sounds like the rustle of greenbacks comes from New York. Danny Morgan, the talkative manager of Knockout Brown, says that he is willing to match the blonde haired Dutchman against any lightweight in the world for a side bet of any part of $25,000. I know of several lightweights who could use this much "coin" to advantage and who also appear to be better mixers than K. O. Included in this number are Matty Baldwin and One Round Hogan.

Boxing is beginning to move down in Lowell—thanks to the ability of Billy Gardiner. On Friday night Jimmy Moriarty will box Honey Mellody in the main bout, while Teddy Murphy and Young Moran will mingle in an eight round semi-final. There will be a six-round preliminary between Johnny Thompson of Lawrence and Young Tenney of Wakefield.

Al Delmont will pick up a little loose change when he clashes with Young Britt of Baltimore at Newport to-night. Delmont has been taking things easy of late, but is now ready to meet the best men in this class.

Sam Langford will soon be earning his bread knocking out some of the big heavies over in Australia. It waits to be seen whether the Australian authorities will follow the lead of England and prohibit knockouts. If they do it will be pretty tough on Sambo.

ALL-AMERICAN FOOTBALL ELEVEN

Dingbat	Centre
Judge Rumhauser	Right Guard
Claude Ecuire	Right Tackle
Sherlocko	[illegible]
Jeff	Quarterback
Des. Desmond	Right Halfback
A. Mutt	Fullback

Coaches—"Bud" Fisher, Tad, Powers.

Mutt, Jeff, Sherlocko, Silk Hat Harry and Judge "Rummy" a Few of the Stars.

With the selection of All-American football elevens by various experts all over the country the honor of choosing the best team falls to a reader of the AMERICAN who signs himself "Water Boy."

The selections are truly all AMERICAN, and everybody will agree that this aggregation of stars is in a class by itself. Another [illegible] that makes this eleven [illegible] powerful and popular than those selected by others is the fact that they are well known throughout New England, all being talent and the best ever.

The eleven is composed of the greatest bunch of stars playing [illegible] in the [illegible] are such [illegible] A. Mutt, Nervo, the [illegible] original Desperate Desmond the [illegible] and last but by no means least [illegible] and friend and college chum, Little Jeff.

Water Boy claims that team would be an unbeatable quartette. He speaks very highly of Jeff's thinking apparatus while he has got a hunch that Nervo would come pretty near getting away with everything he started.

With Desperate Desmond and that brilliant star A. Mutt to hit the line for long gains and pull off an occasional run for ninety yards the team should run up some big scores.

Dingbat will receive all bouquets offered for star centres, while Judge Rumhauser is firm in the belief that he can take care of all the lemonade that comes his way at right guard.

NEW YORK, Dec. [illegible] The admirers of Pal Moore, the clever [illegible] were jubilant to-day over [illegible] victory which the [illegible] has [illegible] off here. After beating Jack Dorman on Monday night [illegible] Howard of Brooklyn [illegible] the Bowery [illegible] last night winning again.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—Mike Gibbons, the [illegible] welterweight [illegible] as to-day [illegible] his victory over Walter Coffey in a ten-round bout at the Fairmount A. C. Although Gibbons was the lighter man, he outclassed Coffey all the way and at times toyed with the westerner at will.

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 6.—Martin Canole of Fall River won on a foul from Tommy Perry of Attleboro in the third round of a bout scheduled for twelve rounds. It was one of the poorest main bouts ever held here and was a sorry spectacle for those who have seen Canole [illegible] Perry had it all his own way up to the time the foul was committed and the [illegible] a general impression that the contest was a frame-up.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Jack Denning of New York won all the way from Ben Douglas of Newark, N. J., in a ten-round bout at Brown's Gymnasium. In the fourth round [illegible] Douglas [illegible] the last [illegible] of the fight the New Yorker [illegible]

LAKE MAY HAVE CHARGE.

There is a strong possibility that Fred Lake will manage the Lynn team of the New England League next season. Lake and President E. B. Fraser, H. S. Cummings and Frank J. Leonard, all directors of the Lynn team, held a conference at the American House, during which the baseball outlook in Lynn was thoroughly discussed. Although no definite understanding was reached in regard to Lake assuming the management of the team, that matter being delayed until the directors' meeting next Friday night, it was stated that if Lake is selected he will have entire charge of the team.

BIG BASKETBALL LEAGUE STARTS

Amateur [illegible] basketball will be revived in Boston to-night when the opening games in the Greater Boston League will be played at the Boston College Hall in the South End and Ward 8 Hall in the West End. At the former floor the St. Mary's Five will meet the Cathedral Y. M. C. A., while on the Blossom Street court, St. Alphonsus will meet the St. Joseph quintet.

The officials who will referee to-night's contests were chosen from a large number of applicants and satisfied the committee that they were qualified to act in the capacity of a referee. The players will be watched closely and at the least sign of ungentlemanly play they will be disqualified.

SWINEHART FIVE WINS.

The Swinehart Regalia team of the Rubber Tire League have struck a good stride in the match with their rivals, the Firestones, the five first named cowers cleaning up all four points. Fiske had high total for the Swinehart five while [illegible] defeated team.

The Swinehart team rolled for a total of 1374 [illegible] Fiske [illegible] with a [illegible] total of 274 [illegible] hit the wood for 247. [illegible] and Green was low man with 203. Sears was high man on the Fire tone team with a three string total of 231. Marby was second man with 214. Jensen hit the wood for 208. Brown had 193 and McCradden rolled lowest with 187.

LENNERTON WILL COACH.

Leo C. Lennerton, hockey manager at the Boston Arena last Winter and former Canadian player, has been appointed coach of the Amherst hockey team for this season. Coach Lennerton will leave for Amherst to-morrow and will start work with the candidates just as soon as it is cold enough for ice.

B. A. A. TO MEET STARS.

A match arranged for the Arena Saturday of great local interest is that between the B. A. A. and the three coastal teams. The [illegible] between these teams has [illegible] this year. These are practically the [illegible] teams that [illegible] never see the merits of each other [illegible] hockey when they played under the names of the Boston Hockey Club and Victo as last year.

MASON BEATS SMITH.

Baseball Notes

Fogel and Murphy are [illegible] a lot of talking lately, but what will it all amount to?

Jack Lelivelt, for three seasons an outfielder with the Washington American League team, has been released to the Rochester Club in the Eastern League. Lelivelt [illegible] a batting average of more than [illegible] last season [illegible] the Nationals [illegible]

The Chicago National League team will make an extended trip through Southern cities for exhibition games after concluding their preliminary training at New Orleans. In the two weeks before the opening of the season five games will be played at [illegible] Indianapolis and perhaps two at Terre Haute.

Otto Knabe of the Philadelphia National League team and Miss Kathryn Walsh of [illegible] were married last Friday in Atlantic City.

Ambrose McConnell's name does not hold forth on the reserve list of White Sox players. The diminutive second sacker who, despite ill fortune, did valiant service for the white stars in the last two campaigns, has passed along, according to a list of South Side players compiled by Secretary Harry Grabiner.

The baseball season must be coming. Already [illegible] Sox players has started his intention of [illegible] up the boss for a good sized [illegible] next year. Buck O'Brien, the actor [illegible] that his few games in the big leagues last season were good enough to entitle him to more money and he has a lot of fans with him.

A White league in Florida would not be a bad idea, but it would have to be only for big league recruits. The baseball fans of the cities that are in the two big leagues would not stand to have their star players in that league during the Winter and then come North in the Summer months and play poor ball. The American and National League fans want the best baseball, and [illegible] a long rest after finishing a strenuous season.

It will not be long now before the two new men in charge of the Red Sox hit the town. Things are pretty slow in the American League headquarters, but as soon as McRoy and McAleer come to town things will take a new life.

Contracts to all the ball players throughout the country will be sent out within a short while. Yes, and then the stories of how such a big star is going to be a holdout and retire unless he receives double his wages will creep out.

Eighteen thousand dollars to lead the Detroit Tigers next season. That is the new figure that has been given out as Hughey Jennings's end for next season.

George A. Huff, director of athletics at the University of Illinois, will scout for the Cleveland Club next Summer. For many years Huff has been the chief scout of the Chicago Cubs and during his long experience in the field has dug up many a valuable man for Frank Chance.

There seems little likelihood of George Stovall, the deposed leader of the Naps, carrying on in a [illegible] role the year. It was believed [illegible] that Bob Heitzes would give him a [illegible] with the St. Louis Browns. But the owner of the [illegible] orders has just purchased for a fancy price First Baseman Tennant, of San Francisco, and it is very unlikely that he would desire Stovall as a bench manager.

Some [illegible] to those world's champion Athletics. The annual blowout which commemorated the winning of the Fall classic is held during the meeting of the big leagues. Generally the magnates of the major league feature the "spread." This year the banquet will be given to the members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America, and what magnates attend will have to look on from the side tables. The scribes will be the guests of [illegible] for the first time in major league history. Joe McCready, who had charge of the press arrangements at Shibe Park during the world's series, will have entire charge of the banquet. That it will be a winner goes without saying.

Word comes from Youngstown, O., the Winter home of Charlie Hemphill, that the former outfielder of the Yankees is trying to purchase his release from Charles Comiskey. Hemphill was sold to the White Sox at waiver price at the close of the campaign. He has been offered the management of the Atlanta team in the Southern League. Hemphill is anxious to accept the offer. He believes the climate would assure him many years additional activity as a minor league boss. Comiskey will probably not stand in the player's way of [illegible] arrangement.

BARRY TO PLAY CHESS.

John F. Barry, an expert chess player, will meet all comers this evening at the Boston Chess Club at No. 17 Exchange street. Many clever chess players are enlisted at this club and it is expected that Mr. Barry will receive much opposition in many of his matches. Play will start at 7.45.

WANT STADIUM FOR ARMY GAME

The Army will play the Navy on the gridiron in the Harvard Stadium next season if the plans of many prominent persons connected with the two United States institutions are carried out. For the past few years there has been a great deal of dissatisfaction with the arrangements for playing the annual game on Franklin Field and a move is being made to arrange the game to be played in the big Harvard amphitheatre.

The contest [illegible] ranks with the Harvard-Yale, the Princeton-Yale and the Harvard-Princeton battles as the most important of the year. It has for the past few years been a field for [illegible] ticket speculators who have charged enormous prices to see the [illegible]

Another fact that has been found is that some 25,000 spectators can be accommodated at Franklin Field, while double that number each year seek tickets. This fact would be eliminated if the game was held in the Crimson Stadium, for fully 15,000 more can be seated inside the big arena than can be accommodated at Philadelphia.

Secretary Meyer of the Navy is enthusiastic over the plan of playing the game in this city as is [illegible] Weeks, of Newton. [illegible] Weeks is a graduate of Annapolis and who never misses the annual gridiron battle between the Cadets and Middies is pleased with the idea of having the game in Boston and feels certain that the two teams would be given a grand reception here. Secretary Meyer says he will do all in his power to bring the game to Boston.

Secretary of War Stimson, it is said, is the only person connected with the two academies who is against [illegible] the game here and he advances as his reason that Boston is too far away from Washington and still another reason that the two managements have decided when and where the two teams will meet for the next three years.

However, a conference by Secretaries Meyer and Stimson will be held in a few days and some definite arrangements will probably be made to hold the games in the Stadium in the near future if not next year.

Members of the Harvard corporation, it is understood, [illegible] in favor of [illegible] the game here [illegible] Charles [illegible] But they will probably [illegible] the initiative to bring the teams [illegible]

How to Be Beautiful

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER

PARIS, which is still reckoned the great fashion center, though it is losing rule distinction little by little, is always sending out a little hint and warning the well-versed news till the nation knows it—reading "signs," in coming by a big fashion again.

I have been reading this for seven years and various celebrated French dressmakers assured me personally last Summer that they were making dresses which allowed for more freedom in figures, but I don't see many of them figures about. The fashionable shape for summer still resembles the pouter pigeon with a great deal of "pouter," and no adequate pedestal. Women still wear corsets reaching to the knees, and so tightly laced over the hips that they make it impossible to be really graceful or to do anything but stand around in stiff attitudes. The woman who is dressed in the latest fashion sits down with effort and many of them would much rather stand on all the time, as on the whole they suffer less than when try to make the unbending steps bend to fit a chair.

As the waistline of the corsets is seen what large strain in the seams of these gowns, women feel that they are wearing a hygienic garment. What effect the big toes shape is going to have on the human race is not entirely decided, though it is certain that all unnecessary pressure and confinement of the hips is harmful, as that the hips are erect, besides hindering the circulation in the lower part of the body, frequently presses on the bowels causing pain and often inflammation in the limbs. Women wear these corsets because they believe they are reducing their size. They certainly do change the appearance and if it is a question of fashion or comfort only, in this age no one is to be pitied. But just so sure as nature is outraged by compressing the middle part of the body, just so sure is the result sooner or later to be ugly.

One of the best exercises I know for reducing the hips is a very simple one and consists of standing on a step or a footstool beside the chair or banisters, to which you can cling with your hands. Stand on one foot, the other foot hanging beside the footstool or step, press the free foot down as far as possible, then first, of course, it should not touch the floor. Now swing the leg backward and forward from the hip, using as much pressure and tension in all of the muscles as you can put into them; reverse the exercise, swinging the other foot and leg.

Repeat this for five or ten minutes but don't forget that in all physical culture exercising the main thing that counts is the tension of the muscles. If you do not keep this tension up, no matter how often you do the exercise, it will have no special effect. To get results from exercising you have got to keep your mind on the work.

One of the fads which women have taken up lately to reduce the hips consists in rolling on a hardwood floor, and while it sounds ludicrous it is often very effectual. The patient lies on the floor clad in a thin wrapper, and, of course, without corsets or tight clothes of any kind. With the hands flung above the head, she rolls over and over. The hard floor and the constant movement give her a very good massage. Of course you have to roll at least fifteen minutes twice a day, preferably at night and morning. Another good hip-reducing exercise consists in lying on the floor on one's side, supporting oneself by one hand, the head nearest the floor, while the other hand is placed upon the hip. While holding this position the whole body should be gradually raised from the floor, the weight being supported by the feet and the hand. It is fairly easy to get the body off the floor as far as the knees, but it requires a good deal of effort to bring it up from the knees to the ankles. Try this exercise on the other side and repeat until tired.

HICTANER

By Jean de la Hire

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT.

Copyrighted, 1911, by American Journal-Examiner.

SEVERAC relaxed. He sighed. He would have been loath to kill the priest, for he realized that the man must know Moisette's whereabouts.

"Speak," he said, excitedly. "Speak, and you'll live."

"By the life eternal, I swear it," cried Fulgence solemnly. "Here is the truth."

Mademoiselle Moisette and another young girl named Vera, arrived here ten days ago. I think, escorted by Antil.

They only stayed one night. Acting upon an order from the master, Antil put them in the electric launch and took them to the Lost Isle."

"And Hictaner?" roared Severac, infuriated.

"Hictaner followed them," replied Fulgence.

He explained the cataclysm of the grottoes very simply.

Ordered by Admiral Germinet of the probable locations of the grottoes, Hictaner had easily found their entrance, thanks to his submarine faculties. He had called Antil to Cabera to take the electric launch, and the kidnaping was accomplished. After which Hictaner had blown up the entrance by means of dynamite cartridges discovered in the laboratory.

This explanation, which satisfied Severac, did not contribute to the truth, but the conclusions were identical.

He must proceed to the Lost Isle, and by means of the electric mirror go in by stealth to the stairway and Moisette's room, and there kidnap her again.

After which, still by means of the electric mirror, he would accomplish the annihilation of all the inhabitants of the Lost Isle, Hictaner included, if he should show his head above water.

It took Severac only half a minute to make these plans. When they were formulated he drew back a step and said rapidly to the priest.

"Very well, Brother Fulgence. Now, do you believe in a God, pray. I will give you just one minute to prepare for death."

He seized his electric mirror.

This time when the priest grew pale and trembled it was not acting.

"You are going to kill me?" he asked. "Why?"

"Because you can report our conversation to Orus and Fulbert by telephone, and in order that you shall not. I"——

"I will keep the secret."

The Death Count

"Liar! But in any case, I need exclusive possession of the house and the telephone post. You annoy me. When you are removed one of my men will take your place.

"Little by little the same thing will happen to all the posts of the men you call master, be they terrestrial or submarine.

"I will take possession. Come, my men, boring here. You are to die. I will count sixty, just one minute."

In a loud voice Severac counted:

The priest reeled. In his wild eyes, however, was a spark of fierce joy. He fell to his knees, and found himself thus, close to the wall.

He raised his right hand, and its index finger lay upon a tiny black button in the centre of a massive hidden carved rose. He said in a voice of terrible tranquility:

"Severac, listen to me. If you put your finger near the spring of your electric mirror I will press the button under my hand!

"You will die with me, Severac, because the slightest pressure on my part would send an electric shock through a mass of three-hundred-weight of an explosive a hundred times more powerful than dynamite.

"Half of Carera would blow up, and we should be in the rules.

"The master has foreseated everything. It would be death for death, Severac."

As he spoke the terrible words, Fulgence, with bright, clear eyes, was watching Severac's hands clawing the machine.

A flash of infernal hatred passed between the two men.

They eyed one another with tense nerves.

The very pupils of their eyes seemed to shoot fire.

Severac stood in the full light of day, Fulgence was hidden in the shadow.

Suddenly a giant-like man sprang through the door which had been open since Severac's entrance. He fell upon Severac and pinned him to the floor. The electric mirror fell from his hands and rolled outside.

Fulgence had had ten seconds of despair.

At the sight of ten sailors entering at the same instant and throwing themselves upon Severac, he collected his wits, and slipping along in the shadow toward the door of the passage leading to the subterranean telephone room, he disappeared.

Meanwhile Severac had been seized by the four strange men, and the giant who had felled him to earth handcuffed him.

Then, stepping toward the open door, he said, with a salute.

"Admiral, you may come in."

To Be Continued To-morrow.

Gift and Card Parties

AS A CHANGE from the usual round of progressive cards with one or more large prizes at the end of the series, hostesses are arranging "Gift and Card" series which seem already to have captured the feminine fancy.

The idea is a charming one, as well as a novelty, and if the semi-professional card player loses thereby, the gainers are those who play for the enjoyment of the game itself and the sociability thereof.

The affair is announced on the invitation cards as a "Gift Euchre," "Gift Hearts," "Gift Whist," or "Gift Bridge," as the case may be. The initiated understand that instead of prizes at the conclusion there will be a variety of little souvenirs or favors distributed during each stage of the progression.

If four persons play at each table the entertainer must have on hand two inexpensive trifles (some of which may be whipped up at home in odd minutes) for each table in each room.

When the game is fairly launched a little stand containing all the gifts for the first round is arranged in an anteroom.

When the round has been played the couples whose tallies have been punched and who are to progress are conducted into an adjoining room, where they make a selection among the gifts on the table.

Another round is then played and again all the lucky ones are privileged to proceed to the gift chamber and make a choice.

This continues during each progression, after which the greater part of the company are practically certain to have received souvenirs, since almost every one will progress at least once.

The idea of the cards and gifts is frequently elaborated, especially for purely feminine functions, for which it is a perfect favorite.

For instance, at one version the women all received pink baskets trimmed with pink crepe and crepe paper roses in which to collect the favors won after each round.

Again there is much novelty in the way of presenting the little favors. At one entertainment they were wrapped in little bundles covered with Dresse paper of pastel shades and tied with ribbon to the direction of a little rose, each player draping the bow herself without being permitted to see the contents, somewhat in blind man's style.

One entertainer buried her gifts, which had previously been done up in squares of gilt and silver paper, in a box of sand, arranging a kindlike. The guests arriving received cunning little toy spades tied with ribbon, which they were at loss to understand the purpose of until conducted to the sandpile in the adjoining room and invited to dig after treasure. The ribbons on the spades, by the way, gave the clue to the table at which the recipient was to play, each table being trimmed in a certain color, and four spades being tied with each hue represented.

The Methods of a Wise Mother.

Cissy Neglect—"My mother buys a lot of premium soap and saves the wrappers to get me a new dress with them because she says the boiling is awfully hard on them and turns them yellow."

Eva Spickandspan—"My mother saves no wrappers. She saves the clothes by not boiling them. She uses Fels-Naptha soap."

Anty Drudge—"Well, Eva, you certainly show good training and the methods of a wise mother. Fels-Naptha soap requires no boiling to keep frocks white and looking new. And, Cissy, tell your mother it's wiser to save the clothes than save the wrappers."

Why?

Because Fels-Naptha soap makes washing easy. No hot fires, no boiling, no houseful of stifling steam, no wash boiler of scalding water endangering lives and limbs.

And when the washing's done there's no yellow tinge in the clothes. The white things are snowy, the colored things are unfaded, the flannels and other woolens are unshrunk.

When you use Fels-Naptha soap the work is only about one-fourth as hard. You put the clothes in cool or lukewarm water—never hot—rub the Fels-Naptha on them, roll them and let them soak for half-an-hour. Then rub lightly, rinse and hang on the line.

Don't forget the saving to your own health and good looks, too. If you wash the Fels-Naptha way you don't have bruised knuckles, steamed face and aching back.

After you've tried it once you will never dream of going back to the old way of washing.

Desperate Desmond

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

Claude Lelaire, hero, and a Turkish subdier, mercenary, chase the fleeing Desmond over the rooftops of Tripoli. Few persons would think of employing a horse for a roof expedition, but the villain has a lot of new ideas and, as he leaves his purseners behind, this one appears justified.

Rosamond is borne rapidly away from her lover, Claude. The villain has but to urge his steed over one more roof and he is safe from pursuit. Just what the residents of the houses think of the racket that even in Tripoli the possession of a strongly developed sense of humor.

Down in the street something is going on. A party of young Tripolitans are preparing to celebrate, and to make a good bonfire they decide to annex a frame house. It is playful prank, and shows

As his house is being rapidly moved away the owner arrives upon the scene and thinks that he might rescue some of his furniture from the ames without meeting too much of a damper on the festive spirit of the occasion. The joke appeals least to the owner than to others.

In the meantime Desmond's motor steed has missed his jump for the house, but, thanks to the mattresses on the ground, police have put him on a mattress and the fall is broken and Rosamond is saved even then the extemporized bonfire fades from being killed. Desmond is also saved, villain will be grilled. He deserves to be, but that is more to be regretted than in to-morrow's pictures there will be more approved.

Creamed Ham

A HIGHLY satisfactory culinary remnant is a bit of cold ham, whether baked or boiled. It is a left-over which makes up quickly and well in a number of ways, which combine tastiness and flavor with substantiality.

Cook for fifteen minutes three-quarters of a cup of milk in a double boiler, with half a stalk of celery and just a slice of onion. Remove celery and onion, and thicken the milk with a level tablespoonful and a half of butter and the same of flour. These ingredients are to be creamed together before using in the usual way.

When the mixture is thick cover the double boiler and allow it to cook ten minutes. Now stir in three-fourths of a cup of cold boiled ham, which has been put through the chopper and allow this to become very hot.

Have ready either circlets or neatly trimmed squares of toast, and dip the edges thereof in boiling salt water before arranging on a hot platter. Spread lightly with good butter, and afterward with the minced ham. Put a nicely poached egg on each piece of toast.

The most astute breakfaster will not suspect the left-over morsel concealed therein.

NOT his own dreams. They, if they came to him, were the healthy confused glomeration of sense and nonsense that pass at times through the unconscious brain of any normal man. But the dreams of his friend, the mad Elias, the man whom he called John Smith, because he knew no other name.

Not his own dreams. They, if they came to him, were the healthy conglomeration of sense and nonsense that pass at times through the unconscious brain of any normal man. But the dreams of his friend, the mad Elias, the man whom he called John Smith, because he knew no other name.

The man in the adjoining bed did not seem to hear, perhaps if he had heard he would not have understood. He knew nothing of the dreams that woke him up sometimes shivering and huthed in sweat like a man in his death agony. He understood very little of the life that he lived, and that those about him lived, and of the little that he understood that would have been wholly unintelligible to Oates or to his sister.

Slept Like a Child

But Oates, despite his fatigue, did not so easily fall asleep. The fight down there by the railings when for a moment the mad preacher had been swept off his feet by the jeering crowd had stirred his blood; his brain was unusually active.

He might dismiss him contemptuously from public discussion by calling him a mad fool, but in his heart Oates knew that he was not to be disposed of so easily, this enigma whom he had met for the first time on a small trading steamer, working his passage home from the coast under conditions that were only to be described as hellish.

Who was he and what? There was nothing in his speech or his mode of life, unless it might be a somewhat too scrupulous personal cleanliness, to differentiate him from any of the people among whom he lived, and yet at times——

"Oh, God—oh, God, . . ." The man in the other bed had started up screaming. His wide, staring eyes had the blank, unseeing look of the sleep-walker, but to Oates, suddenly started up alert now from his half-drowsy thoughts, they seemed to be laden with unspeakable horror. "No—no—not that—for God's sake. . . ."

He was beating the air now with his twisted hands, struggling—Oates could not have told how he knew this, but only that he did know it—indifferently, to drive back some enemy.

"Ah. . . ." The thin, high voice rang through the room in a shriek that was like a woman's. "You devils . . . you devils . . ." and died into a long, sobbing breath.

Terror in Scream.

He fell back on the pillow, silent, but wild-eyed, and Oates mechanically wiped the sweat that had started to his brow with the back of his hand.

"Poor Lord, what is't he remembers?" he whispered to himself.

There was silence for a few minutes in the room, silence that had something balmgiving and blessed in its breath, after that last awful cry.

"God . . ." The voice from the bed sounded thinly in the darkness. "O God . . . out of the depths have I cried unto Thee. Lord, hear my voice . . . for there is mercy with Thee . . . Mercy!"

Terror in that scream, so piercing, so real and unspeakable in its horror that Oates could forbear no longer.

He went over to the other bed and shook the man awake.

The terror in the wide blue eyes faded as though a veil had fallen over them. Smiling like a child, he fell back on the pillow and into quiet sleep again.

It was Clemency Westgarth's wedding day.

As she lay awake in the half shadows she thought of the fact with a dazed intentness.

A week ago she had come down with Lady Winterbourne to this house by the sea, an old, half timbered house that was little more than a glorified cottage, for she rest that her strained nerves had ordered absolutely imperative; in a few hours they would travel back to London together, and before 1 o'clock the woman who was called Clemency Westgarth would cease to exist.

Everything had been done with the utmost decorum. Tring, conquering the pride that would have wished to forego all his own desires and leave everything to the girl's half-hysterical impulses, had agreed her into accepting all the outward conveations.

Her Wedding Day

And Clemency, bitterly as she had resented his suggestions at first, was now in her secret heart glad that she had adopted them. Lady Winterbourne had shown surprising tact, had smoothed innumerable rough places.

"My wedding day," she repeated the words aloud to the emptiness of the room, and thought, as the man who had wronged her had thought months ago, staring out over the white mists of an African forest, of the wedding day she had once pictured and longed for.

Her wedding day. A [illegible]et ceremony in some drab London church . . . a ceremony so empty that it would be almost blasphemous.

She made a sudden, involuntary movement of pain; all the doubts and fears, the shrinking, mental and physical, that had racked her on that evening following her promise to marry Conrad Tring, returning to her re-enforced. It was impossible that she could go through with this marriage.

A wave of warm self-pity swept over her. She sobbed in the abandonment of her misery.

And with the soft opening of the door that told of the entrance of the maid, of the beginning of the waking day, she knew how futile her rebellion was.

It was not possible to draw back; it was only possible to go forward with courage.

To Clemency the journey to town was a time of agony. They were running through the mean purlieus that lie about Victoria, and Lady Winterbourne began to exhibit signs of excitement.

A Beautiful Bride

"You are beautiful, my dear child," she said, and there was almost a touch of wistful envy in her voice, "but more pale than a bride should be; are you frightened? There is no need for fear, I can assure you of that."

The train was slackening speed, was running into the station. Clemency caught a glimpse of Tring waiting on the platform as the train glided up to it, and her heart gave a throb of relief. At least, with him there need be no pretense.

"You love him," the old woman persisted, with a certain eagerness, "Oh, my dear, I hope so."

"I—there is no fear of shipwreck, dear Lady Winterbourne," she whispered quickly.

And with that the old woman who loved Conrad Tring as a son was forced to be content.

They were to be married in a church in one of the northern suburbs.

There was a brougham waiting, into which Tring handed Clemency and his aunt. He had arranged to follow them in another vehicle, but Clemency caught at his hand with a fierce whisper.

"Come with us, don't leave us alone."

But it was only as a shield between herself and the inquisitive tongue of the shrewd-eyed old woman that she desired his presence, he knew that very well.

On the steps of the church, in the semi-privacy of the porch, where tattered parochial notices fluttered forlornly in the wind, Clemency held Tring back with a nervous, detaining grip.

In the Bleak Church.

"Oh, Con, I am frightened. I am frightened," she whispered. "Is it madness, this marriage of ours? Is it too late to draw back now?"

"Rather late to change your mind, isn't it?" he said. "After all, are you risking so much, Clemency?"

She made a desperate little fluttering movement of her hands.

"Do you want to draw back?"

Inside the old church that seemed bleak for all the warmth of the sunshine, the new rector waited for them to the altar rails.

"I require and charge you both, as ye will answer at the dreadful day of judgment, when the secrets of all hearts shall be disclosed . . . if you know any impediment . . . ye do now confess it."

It was sacrilige, this service in which she was taking part.

"Any impediment?" Yes, the impediment of another man—a dead man, lying in an unknown grave that the green, envious hands of the African forest had hid from the sight of men. Any impediment? Yes, the fierce undying love of this man who was dead, that was aching now in her heart as she stood there.

Grotesquely she put out her hand, and Tring, misunderstanding the gesture, caught, caught it and held it fast. She strove to speak; but her dry lips formed no words.

"For . . . so many as are coupled together otherwise . . . are not joined together by God; neither is their matrimony lawful."

A panic impulse to scream aloud caught at her throat. Tring's gripping fingers seemed to burn her hand, to sear it to the bone. With an effort she dragged her senses together. There was no going back now, no going back.

Had she given her answer? She could not tell. Now saw the pale eyes of the clergyman fixed on her with a wondering disapproval. What did he know? What did he condemn?

Then, her eyes roving about her, came back with a renewal of consciousness to the fact that the man before her was joining her hand with that of Conrad Tring. That the ring had been placed on her finger. That she was married. That she was trapped.

And in that moment all the mists cleared from her mind, and she knew that she must have cried out the world hold, even the hope of happiness, to be free once more.

Outside the church the first step in that new life awaited her. No excuse now to be made whereby she might avoid the solitude a desert she dreaded—Clemency knew that; Lady Winterbourne's neat electric brougham was waiting to carry me off to some luncheon party at the other side of London; she was too late already, she made no attempt to disguise her eagerness to be gone.

Ham Timbales

HALF a cupful of macaroni broken small, boiled tender in a saucepan of actively boiling salted water. Drain, rinse quickly in cold water, and turn into a cloth. Cut a portion of the pasta into slices about a fourth of an inch in length, and taking these one at a time on a skewer dip them in melted butter, and with them line well buttered molds. Chop fine half a cup of cold ham, add a fourth cup of paste, a beaten egg, a teaspoonful each of salt and paprika, and two-thirds cup of rich milk, thin cream, or stewed tomato. Mix these constituents thoroughly, and fill the lined molds with them. Cut a number of thicknesses of paper to fit the bottom of a baking dish, and having placed the molds on these, pour in boiling water to come half way up the sides of the timbale tins. Cook in the oven or on the top of the range until the centres appear firm. The water must never be allowed to boil up around the edge of the molds.

Cook a slice of onion until soft in two tablespoonfuls of butter. Add one level tablespoonful of flour, with just a pinch of mace, of salt. Add to this half a cup of tomato puree, cook and stir till it boils; then strain over the remainder of the macaroni. Let this mixture stand over boil water until the paste is thoroughly heated and if liked, and before serving a little grated cheese.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

Following the example set by Erie a few years ago, the Wabash railroad has gone into unofficial receivership and the company has moved rapidly out of its position as a disturber of the general market.

$ $ $

One of the trite sayings of the financial district is that State Street is more hopeful than bullish, but in some quarters this is regarded as quite a concession. The bears refuse to concede anything, and maintain that their position on the market is the correct one.

$ $ $

There is a report, and it comes from a source deemed reliable, that a big pool has been formed in the equipment stocks. It is understood that this pool expects to see the car companies secure orders aggregating at least 50,000 cars before the end of the present year.

$ $ $

It is among the possibilities that radicalism of all sorts has received a blow in consequence of the developments at Los Angeles, but it may be as well not to bank too heavily upon this. There is no telling where the agitators will break out next, and it might be just as well to be careful in making stock market commitments at this time.

$ $ $

Many of the keenest observers in the Street say they have noted an increase in the short interest in the market of late; yet, while some of the shrewdest operators on the floor of the Stock Exchange are bearish, these observers believe in the long side of the market. They do not think it good policy to sell long stock now, but they would not add to their holdings unless recessions came.

$ $ $

The ordinary stockholders in Standard Oil do well to beware of the market for the subsidiaries for a year or two, or at least until there is some basis for knowing the value of these individual stocks. Nothing can be lost by such a plan, for if some stocks decline in value others will advance, and the average will remain about what it is now.

$ $ $

Earnings of the St. Paul for October show further shrinkage. The total operating revenue was $366,736 less than October of last year, and the net $190,616 less. The Puget Sound, however, shows an increase of $106,339 in net operating income for the month. The Tacoma & Eastern showed a decrease in operating income of $12,777, so that the net decrease for the system is $115,476. State Street is fully prepared for a reduction of the St. Paul dividend, although the favorable turn of business in connection with the Puget Sound may give the Street another disappointment in this direction.

$ $ $

Word is received by C. A. Stoneham & Co. that the Ely Consolidated has struck in the face of the south drift of the Zack on the 600-foot level the same vein of rich ore so extensively developed on the 500 level. The ore is the same in character as the first vein above, which was twenty feet in width.

WABASH STOCK DAY'S FEATURE

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—After some slight gains the stock market became irregular to-day, chief interest centring in the Wabash shares in consequence of the reorganization statement and the enforced retirement of the Goulds. Wabash 4's, which opened ⅝ lower, subsequently rose ⅝. Wabash common started ¼ higher, then dropped ⅝. United States Steel common opened up ⅛. Other gains in the first transactions were: Amalgamated Copper, ⅛; Erie, ⅛; Reading, ⅛; Pennsylvania, ⅛; Union Pacific, ⅛; Canadian Pacific, ¼.

Business was small at the opening, trading being almost at a standstill. The curb opened quiet and steady. Americans in London were firm, but trading was narrow and practically wholly professional. Canadian Pacific in London was steady.

AUTO MEN PLAN FOR BANQUET

By J. C. KERRISON.

In addition to the four speakers who have accepted the invitation to attend the annual banquet of the Bay State Automobile Association at the Hotel Somerset on Monday evening next, the committee in charge has arranged several other features which will prove interesting.

In making the seating arrangements for the dinner the committee will give precedence to those who have already responded and in order that this work may be accomplished with satisfaction to all, it is desired that those intending to participate in the festivities immediately announce their intentions. Already over 200 applications for seats have been received and there is no question but what this dinner will be the largest attended in the history of the organization.

Retail Manager George W. Phelps of the Studebaker Corporation has made arrangements for the stereopticon illustration of the method of automobile construction to be given at Cheaffe Dancing Academy at the corner of Boylston and Gloucester streets on Tuesday evening, December 12. All E. M. F. and Flanders owners are invited, as are also all who are in any way interested in automobiles.

General Sales Manager Baker of the American Motor Car Company is spending the week in Boston as the guest of Manager Doane of the Essex Automobile Company, local distributors of the American car. Mr. Baker expresses himself as thoroughly delighted with the new salesroom of the Essex Company on Boylston street—especially so as it brings the American into the very heart of the automobile district.

* * *

Chief Engineer Wicks of the H. H. Franklin Company is spending a few days as the guest of William Gray of the Gray & Davis Lamp Company, and yesterday had the pleasure of enjoying lunch in company with the "automobile boosters" of Boston and vicinity at the Bay State clubrooms.

* * *

"Jack" Cooper, a former member of the Bay State Association, was given a royal welcome when he visited the club quarters yesterday. Mr. Cooper has returned to the tire business, he now representing the Endurance Tire & Rubber Company of New York, handling Endurance tubes.

* * *

The trio of E. M. F. cars which made such a remarkable record at Savannah by finishing one, two and three in the Tiedeman Trophy race within five minutes of each other, made a number of records, it is claimed. It is said that all three cars came through the 170-mile race without a tire change or even a slow-down or stop for gasoline or oil, and that not a gear lever was touched from start to finish. They also averaged about nine gallons of gasoline and four gallons of oil per car for the entire trip, which was a wonderful showing for these remarkable cars.

SCHOOLDAY ROMANCE ENDS IN WEDDING

A schoolboy romance will result this evening at Cliftondale in the wedding of Chester Irving Barnard of New York city, head of the Foreign Department of the Bell Telephone, and Miss Grace F. Noera of Cliftondale. Mr. Barnard is a graduate of Mt. Hermon Academy at Northfield and Harvard University. He and Miss Noera were sweethearts when each attended the Felton Grammar School of Cliftondale. The courtship continued during the periods Mr. Barnard was attending preparatory school and college.

CHELSEA HAS TWO BIG RALLIES TO-NIGHT

The municipal campaign in Chelsea is expected to take a lively turn to-night, when rallies will be held by the candidates for Mayor, James H. Malone and George W. Ford. Many of the aldermanic candidates also will hold rallies. The city authorities are bound under the new charter to furnish halls for the candidates. Beginning to-morrow night, Malone and Ford will address several meetings of voters each night.

World-Wide Reciprocity and How to Get It

To-day we should be living in the full tide of commercial world-power—with ships manned by American sailors and flying the American flag in every great port of Pan-America, Europe, Asia, Africa and the islands of the sea—if Greed and Ignorance had not, for the last forty years, held predominant seats in the United State Senate.

The Senate as a part of the constitutional treaty-making power has again and again killed and entombed the ever resurgent spirit of Reciprocity. The Senate as the stronghold of crafty and narrow-minded special interests has again and again betrayed, condemned and defeated the generous and enlightened international trade-policy demanded by innumerable popular and commercial conventions and by the bulk of the people of the United States.

Here is a list of nineteen reciprocity treaties negotiated, agreed upon and signed by Presidents of the United States—and afterwards killed in the United States Senate:

(1) The Wheaton treaty with the German Zollverein, 1844.
(2) The Marcy-Lee treaty with the Hawaiian Islands, 1855.
(3) The M'Lane-O'Campo treaty with Mexico, 1859.
(4) The M'Cook-Harris treaty with the Hawaiian Islands, 1867.
(5) The Grant-Trescott treaty with Mexico, 1883.
(6) The Foster treaty with Spain, 1884.
(7) The Frelinghuysen treaty with the Dominican Republic, 1884.
(8) The Kasson-Cambon treaty with France, 1899.
(9) The Buchanan-Alcorta treaty with Argentina, 1899.
(10) The Kasson-Tower treaty with Great Britain, 1899.
(11) The Kasson-Tower treaty with British Guiana, 1899.
(12) The Kasson-Tower treaty with Turks and Caicos Islands, 1899.
(13) The Kasson-Tower treaty with Jamaica, 1899.
(14) The Kasson-Tower treaty with Bermuda, 1899.
(15) The Kasson-Tower treaty with Nicaragua, 1899.
(16) The Kasson-Brun treaty with Denmark, 1900.
(17) The Hay-Vasquez treaty with the Dominican Republic, 1900.
(18) The Sampson-Peralta treaty with Ecuador, 1900.
(19) The Hay-Herbert treaty with Newfoundland, 1902.

There are perhaps half a dozen other Senate-slain reciprocity treaties that might be included in this catalogue. But the foregoing list should suffice to show that the Senate has made itself a deadly redoubt of commercial exclusiveness, a shambles of international fraternity in trade.

All these slaughtered treaties were negotiated by Americans devoted to the policy of a reasonable protection. Not one of them was destroyed in the Senate for any offense done to sound protective principles. They were, one and all, suffocated by the noxious Senatorial gas of special interests. Thus, for example, the cotton knit goods interests killed the Kasson treaty with France; the California fruit growers killed the Jamaican treaty, and the Argentine treaty was killed by the wool growers of the Middle West.

The lesson of this long-drawn experience—this never-ending bafflement of the American people in their struggle for reciprocity—is plainly written in the record. The broad fact of the record is that formal reciprocity treaties—requiring the specific consent of the Senate—have generally failed of confirmation and have not gone into effect. On the other hand, we have had actual and successful reciprocity whenever reciprocity was provided for by broad Congressional enactments—leaving the President free to make terms with other nations and to establish trade agreements by Presidential proclamation—without the consent of the Senate.

The way to get it is for the present session of Congress to pass a liberal reciprocity bill, in general terms, authorizing the President to make reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries—without consulting the Senate about the specific provisions.

There is every reason to believe that progressive Senators of both parties will support such a bill, whole-heartedly. The reactionary Senators will be compelled to support it by the pressure of public opinion. The Senatorial representatives of private greed and public narrow-mindedness have never dared confront and deny the principle of reciprocity. They have thwarted the practice of reciprocity by admitting the principle, and then haggling over the details.

Section 4 of the Dingley tariff bill would have yielded magnificent results—eleven agreements signed under that section would have gone into effect—if the Senate had been given no chance to haggle over the details. That section—apart from its requirement that the Senate should be consulted about the specific trade agreements—deserves study in these days. It put into the President's hands three kinds of concessions, to be used in negotiating agreements with foreign nations, to-wit: (1) A 20 per cent. reduction in any tariff schedule; (2) transfer to the free list of any article produced abroad but not at home, and (3) the guaranty that any particular article on the free list should be kept there. Along these general lines—though with still greater concessions—the coming Congress should draft a general reciprocity bill, giving the President power to enter into new and freer trade relations with any country.

The AMERICAN believes that in negotiating such trade agreements the President should act with the advice and consent of a competent and independent tariff commission. The present tariff board is futile and farcical. It has neither dignity of origin nor hope of perpetuity. It has done nothing but gather a mass of practically meaningless statistics, and is not competent to do anything else. It is a creature of patronage—without an ounce of political independence or scientific authority.

Congress should create a tariff commission that should be as competent and independent as the Commission on Interstate Commerce. And subject to the consent and approval of such a commission the President of the United States should be given a free hand to enter into profitable reciprocity agreement with any or every civilized country world.

Opera in Boston

Everybody in Boston has learned from the newspapers that the third season of the Boston Opera has begun. The AMERICAN hopes that the published accounts of the wonders that take place there have caused all who can afford it to determine to go to the opera.

That an opera house of the first rank should be established in Boston, is a splendid testimonial to the metropolitan character of the city and the taste and intelligence of its people. Its benefit to the city is directly great and indirectly enormous.

There is an absurd superstition that one has to be a musician to appreciate grand opera; that unless one can understand all about nuances and counterpoint, guiding themes and harmonic progression, it is impossible to enjoy the opera.

Actually the person who discourses expertly upon all those things does not enjoy opera nearly as much as the ordinary layman. He is too busy dissecting and vivisecting the music to appreciate its beauty.

Anybody who loves a good song and a good plot and fine scenery will have a splendid time at a performance of grand opera. Everybody who has been to the opera knows this, but we are addressing those who stay away because they lack confidence in their own intelligence.

The Boston Opera House has been pronounced by those who know one of the most beautiful auditoriums in the world. Opera is given there on a grand scale. Why, dramatic performances have been successful for many years on the strength of the spectacular effects which do not compare with the collapse of the Temple of Dagon in the last act of "Samson et Dalila."

At one instant we are looking at a great building filled with dancers and revellers. The giant Samson grasps the pillars which support the roof, topples them over and down comes the whole structure in ruins. It doesn't require any musical training to appreciate a scene like this. It would make the fortune of a dramatic company.

"Samson et Dalila" is an opera which had never been given in Boston before. This brings us to talk about the policy of the Boston Opera, which is revolutionizing grand opera.

In the old days in America grand opera meant only five or six operas, "Faust," "Trovatore," "Traviata," "Lucia," "Lohengrin," and a few others, which those who loved music had to hear over and over and over again. They were hardly music dramas, just vehicles for the singers. They gave the stars a chance to wear picturesque costumes. They were little more than dramatic concerts.

In recent years there has been a feeling that the operas were more important than the singers. Many great works have been written which are just as interesting and exciting and absorbing as dramatic performances. The opera singers have become singing actors instead of strutting and absurd personages.

The Boston Opera during the last three years has been a leader in the movement to give grand opera in the right way. Realizing that people did not wish to see the same old operas all the time, the Boston company has given the best of the new ones.

"Samson et Dalila" is the result of this policy. Everybody who will see this opera during the season will be glad that it has been given to Bostonians. And there are a number of other operas which are new to this city and which we shall see during the coming season. "Thais," for example, is a work that is little known here, and "Pelleas et Melisande," "Werther" and "Germania" are practically new. Boston music lovers have the same thrills that first nighters at the theatre enjoy. They have a chance to see something novel instead of operas which are hackneyed from repetition.

The singers who are appearing here are among the most famous in the world. In addition to Mr. Russell's list of stars, the best artists from the Metropolitan in New York and the Chicago and Montreal companies will visit Boston, just as Emmy Destinn, the world's greatest dramatic soprano, and Scotti, the famous baritone, have come here.

What the AMERICAN wishes to impress upon its readers is that this wonderful entertainment is open to everybody. You don't have to be rich and you don't have to be a trained musician to go and enjoy yourself. It is not even necessary to own grand clothes.

The papers devote space to the doings of society who occupy the boxes and the orchestra seats, but those people can't hear or see any better than the ordinary folk who pay from one to two dollars for balcony chairs.

As a matter of fact we believe that the man or woman who has made some sacrifices to purchase a seat in the second balcony has a more delightful time than the society butterfly who goes to the opera because it is the thing, rather than to gratify a yearning to hear good music.

The AMERICAN hopes some day that it will be possible to give grand opera at such low prices that the poorest person can go frequently. This is done in many places in Europe because the government supports the opera.

In America we are not yet so far advanced. Our opera is paid for by private individuals. The Boston Opera House and its company is the result of the public spirit of a single wealthy man, and it is necessary to charge high prices to pay the singers and the other expenses of an opera company.

Yet after all, one dollar, which is the price of a balcony seat at an ordinary theatre, will admit to a good seat in the second balcony of the opera, where an orchestra of 75, a chorus of 125 and the greatest singers in the world are offered for your enjoyment.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

HORSES IN WAR

Editor AMERICAN:

The present military disturbances in Asia and Africa are a reminder to us of at least one humiliating fact, that not yet have the merciful provisions of the Red Cross been extended to include the horses, that now, when disabled, are left to die lingering deaths on the battlefield.

The army veterinary department should be procured by the enlightened sentiment of the day to parting these innocent dumb sufferers out of their misery; suffering creatures out of their misery; and such work should be regarded as sacred as that of the Red Cross for the wounded soldier.

An effort in this direction is being made in England, and in America and England in Europe, and the Hague Convention, some co-operate at the present dread thing may be effected. The present dread ful exercises to horses in war are a blot on our civilization, as indeed is war itself.

It seems to me that all humane persons should interest themselves in this. Information will be gladly furnished by Edward B. d'Auvergne, late South African Light Horse, No. 2 Marguerite Terrace, Chelsea S. W., England. All that write him are helping to create a public sentiment for a much needed reform.

ITALIAN IS GRATEFUL

Editor AMERICAN:

It is with much pleasure that I extend to you sincere applause and thanks for your strong and helpful campaign in favor of the Italians.

The papers of Mr. Hearst do not send to Tripoli spies, and what the AMERICAN prints is for only and genuine truth.

I am personally against the war, but I do into the people that are against the true.

Every Italian must be grateful to the AMERICAN.
